It Was A Green Year!

Archer students and faculty and members of the Fort Wayne community will long remember 1967 as a phenomenal year for the Kelly 'Green.' South Side built outstanding records not only in academics and athletics but in every phase of school life.

Early last fall, the North Central Committee returned its evaluation of South Side's school system, a praise for excellent organization and strong programs, justly attributing the exceptional academic prowess evident throughout the year. This, however, was only one expression of Archer superiority. The most evident was the 1966-67 athletic season. Highlighting sports was a momentous surge of "Green power" on the football field, as the Archers built an 18-game winning streak. A spectacular season on the hardwood courts immediately followed, the Bowbenders meeting statewide acclaim for both a victorious season and phenomenal tourney play.

South's year was also tinted by the Green of a growing student body and school spirit. From September, students built enthusiasm and deep interest in all activities. The three classes, perhaps the largest combination in years, then manifested this flowering spirit in unusually notable responses to food and book drives and in eagerness to succeed in building a stronger school.

Throughout the year, the Kellys were continually tested in all areas of life. With new growth, maturity, and skills, they were able to meet their challenges and to prove that 1967 was truly a year for the Green to reign superior.

Throughout the year Archers displayed their great enthusiasm and spirit as they loudly supported the Kelly teams.

Archers Base Successful Year On Students' Strong

Chuck Nelson, Bill Watson, and Ron Lowery relax in the cafeteria at lunch before heading for afternoon classes.

The incredible school spirit possessed by both Archer students and faculty marked every phase of Kelly life. Enthusiasm overflowed at all school functions and Archers devoted many extra hours to make possible such special programs as the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Indiana's statehood.

Similarly, unmatched crowds of vociferous teachers and students turned out to support the teams at games and pep sessions. So abundant was Kelly spirit, that one had only to spend a few minutes in the halls, cafeteria, or classrooms to see that the students of South Side were proud of their school, proud of their record, and determined to make 1967 "their year."

South's entire faculty turns out to give the Archer round-ballers a good luck cheer before entering the State Finals.

Spirit, As Expressed In Classes, Clubs, Athletics

Students do not hesitate to show their approval as they enjoy an unusually clever pep session during the football season.

To graduate from high school involves a challenging amount of work. Achieving this goal while maintaining the high academic traditions of South Side High School requires extra effort, initiative, and independent work from each student.

But, as the saying goes, "All work and no play . . ."; so, while performing their assigned tasks, Archers invariably found time to relax with extra-curricular fun and enjoyment. Whether working with faculty advisors on special projects, making posters to decorate the halls, devising outlandish costumes for assemblies and pep sessions, or taking an active part in the Cheerblock, Kellys were always enthusiastic in displaying their spirit.

Student Body, Faculty Meet After School To Further

Over one thousand South Side students were able to cheer the Archer team on in the State Finals at Hinkle Fieldhouse

Develop Individual Interests, Explore New Fields

South Side faculty members, both present and past, gather at their Christmas party to celebrate the coming holidays.

A wealth of opportunities for activities outside the classroom was available to the Archers. Music students were able to display their talents many times throughout the year. The choir, band, and orchestra not only performed at special school assemblies and the Senior Reception, but they also entertained for various community functions.

Aspiring thespians proved themselves in "A Turkey's View of Thanksgiving"; those with a bent for journalism were treated to a tour of Fort Wayne Newspapers Incorporated; and even busy teachers found time for a Christmas party. Recording these many activities of special interest groups was a challenge for school photographers and journalists.

South Side students and visiting North Side cheerleaders are instructed in the flying spread eagle jump by Mr. Don Locke.

Throughout the year, annual school events were highlighted by the election of "Queens and Kings" to rule over the day's or night's activities. These royal appointments, made by South's student body, were instrumental in adding "that extra touch of excitement" to games, dances, and class ceremonies.

Early in the year, Jan Jones was elected to rule the festivities of both the Homecoming game and Dance. Then, in February, the girls choose Jim Wallis from all the senior lettermen to be their "King Kelly." His reign at the Lettermen's dance was soon followed by Sally Reitdorf's coronation as Hi-Y's "Queen of Hearts." In May, five senior girls, elected by their class, led the Ivy Day ceremonies.

Kellys' graceful young cheerleaders, Tom Fleming, Miles Frederick, and Greg Gaulden, lead another hilarious cheer.

Chuck Nelson Earns Basketball's Trester Award

The spirit of South Side is traditionally extremely high during the athletic season, and this year was no exception. Adding a humorous touch to the spirited pep sessions were skits put on by the Senior Class, Hi-Y, and several other groups. The boy "cheerleaders," and the Snoopy-Red Baron battle are part of a memory of the spirit commensurate with the word "athletics."

On the night of the State Finals, South Side won an unexpected victory in Indianapolis. Chuck Nelson, 6'4" guard who has played varsity ball for three years, received Indiana's highest recognition for an individual player — the Arthur L. Trester Award for mental attitude and outstanding ability.

With the same great skill he displayed all year, Chuck Nelson maneuvers the ball at the State tournament in Indianapolis.

Victorious Archers Beat No. 1-Ranked Red Devils,

Indianapolis Hinkle Fieldhouse—the dream of “Hoosier Hysteria.” Everyone said South could “do it again” in 1967. After eliminating a tough Central Tiger Team, the Archers won sectionals and regionals. Then came the miraculous victory over number-one-ranked Michigan City—and the semi-state crown.

The Lafayette Bronchos became the team to beat. In the second game of the afternoon at Hinkle Fieldhouse, the tension and excitement reached a feverish pitch—to the climax of an unbelievable defeat. Through it all, however, there remained in everyone’s mind the conviction that the 1967 state champion team attended South Side High School.

Faculty

Teaching requires a special kind of person, one who is dedicated to his profession and has the ability to awaken the curiosity of students and to stimulate young minds. South Side High School was most fortunate to have many faculty members who not only met, but even surpassed these demanding standards. The over 130 faculty members of the Kelly teaching staff, leaders in both the educational world and Fort Wayne community, used their diversified abilities to help increase the educational opportunities available in the classrooms. Likewise, Archer students will always remember their teachers for their work in extracurricular activities and for serving as chaperones at school dances and on bus trips.

During the year, however, faculty members did find time to relax from their busy schedules. Early in September, teachers and their families met for the Faculty Picnic. Through the long fall term, they aroused spirit at their famous Tuesday night bowling sessions and then all met again at the Christmas Party and Boiler Room Party during semester break. The Quarter-Century Banquet in May was the last formal gathering before the long-anticipated Faculty Breakfast celebrating the end of another school year.

South Side's success in 1967 and the reports of the untold successes of former Archer students remained as the highest tribute to all the teachers. Their influence did not end in the classroom, nor even at the end of the school year.

Busy Administrators Provide Dynamic Leadership,

Principal Mr. Jack E. Weicker maintains South's high standards as he continually plans for the future of 2,000 Archers.

As part of his position as South's new assistant principal, Mr. Richard E. Block counsels all college-bound students.

The office secretaries are Mrs. Sylvia Christon, Miss Nancy Liby, Miss Edith Griswold, and Mrs. Rene Nonneman.

Guidance co-ordinator Mr. Sam Jackson provides vocational advice and job placement for interested Archer students.

Seek Highest Standards Of Education For School

Just as a nation needs a governing body to function, so the Archers depend upon the administration to guide their footsteps. South Side is fortunate to have able leaders who never cease in their hope for a more outstanding school.

It is the complex duty of Principal Jack E. Weicker to oversee the workings of 2,200 people. His four years in this capacity have made him a familiar figure in school, at banquets and dances, and in the community.

Former Dean of Students Richard E. Block this year stepped up to the position of assistant principal. He continues his job of counseling college-bound students, planning their scholastic events, and conducting interviews with the student body.

Two guidance counselors serve Archer students as deans of girls and boys, separately. Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls, has the task of advising all Kellys in matters such as conduct and dress, as well as arranging the many extra-curricular activities and dances. Mr. Ralph Boling became the new dean of boys last fall. His duties consist of assisting Mr. Block with his work.

Guidance Co-ordinator Mr. Sam Jackson's job is to help plan careers and courses for those students who seek vocational work. In accordance with him, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mr. Wayne Scott serve as guidance counselors to the Sophomore Class. Mrs. Sylvia Christon, Miss Nancy Liby, Miss Edith Griswold, and Mrs. Rene Nonneman "aim to please" in their general office clerical work.

Together Mr. Wayne Scott and Mrs. Mary Smith serve as sophomore guidance counselors and aid in school events.

Mr. Ralph Boling, dean of boys, serves as one of South's head advisers for junior and senior college-bound students.

Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls, counsels the entire student body, sets standards, and plans social events.

Academics

It has long been the philosophy of South Side to give each student "an opportunity to get, according to his ability to take, those things which will help him most to be a better citizen of this country than he would have been without a high school education." Continuing in this philosophy, this year's academic progress consisted of the formation of new classes, experiments in teaching, and an exceptional rating from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Many new special classes were established this academic year with much success. These classes, consisting of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, chosen by their former teachers, participated in accelerated courses in chemistry, government, English, and mathematics. In some of these classes, teaching techniques were changed to fashion a method of "team teaching." Throughout the year, classes rotated from teacher to teacher. In this manner, instructors taught only their preferred subject and many times only their specialty in that subject.

One of the great accomplishments this year was the high rating received from the North Central Association's evaluation of South Side High School. The evaluating committee report states that South Side was a "good, strong school," excellent in some respects, good-to-very-good in others, and poor in none. The committee was very favorably impressed by the program of study, by the faculty, and by the entire student body.

Students Build Fundamental English Backgrounds,

Mrs. Corinne Wittenberg leads her junior English class in an interesting discussion about medieval English literature.

Attempting to acquire a tangible background in the English language for South Side students, the English Department provided a sequential, cumulative program emphasizing the three basic components: literature, composition, and grammar.

The literature that the sophomores delved into consisted of such plays as "Our Town" and "Julius Caesar," and the novel, "Silas Marner." The juniors emphasized "Beowulf" and "Macbeth," as well as concentrating on the difficult research paper. This paper prepared them for arduous college work by acquainting them with the numerous reference materials used in the library. Seniors grew in wisdom by tackling a variety of the different forms of literature. The poetry, short stories, essays, and plays studied helped further the ability of the student to meet the task of preparing his hour-long book report.

Additional Controlled Readers, new film strips, and an increased number of textbooks aided the pupil who wished to better his reading speed and improve his comprehension and vocabulary through the developmental reading course.

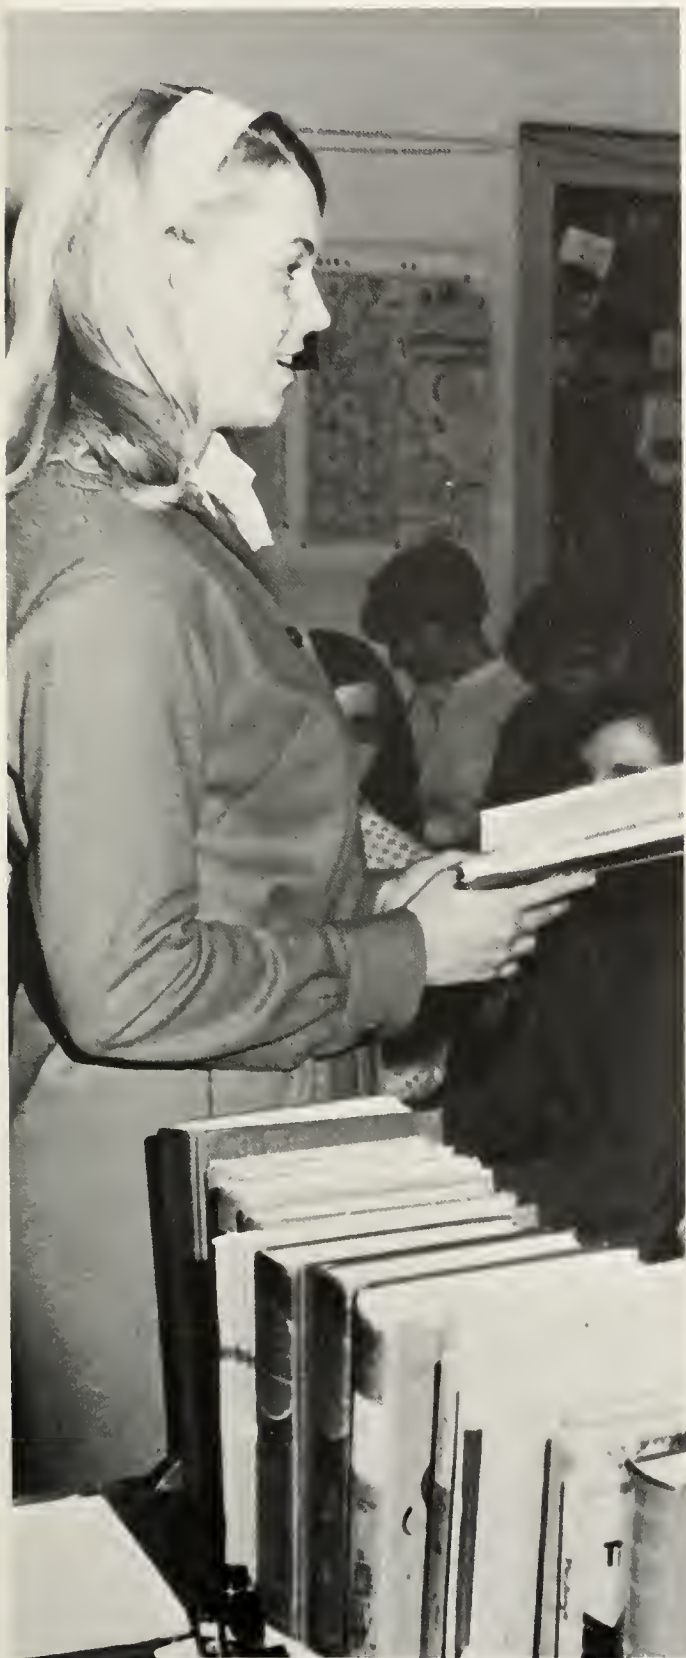

With three years of tireless effort, the conscientious student was able to grasp a very conclusive background of the English language. A strong foundation gained through the capable English Department will long be remembered by the South Side students as they begin the adventures of life.

Senior special English students rotated teachers for several weeks to learn the basics of logic and the proper methods used in logical argument. Here they are taking notes on the forms of the categorical syllogism taught by Mr. Ronald Gersmehl.

Acquire Knowledge Of Self Expression, Literature

With typical gestures, Mr. Ronald Gersmehl conducts a lecture about critical analysis in his senior English class.

Students are able to develop better and faster reading skills by practicing with the new development reading equipment.

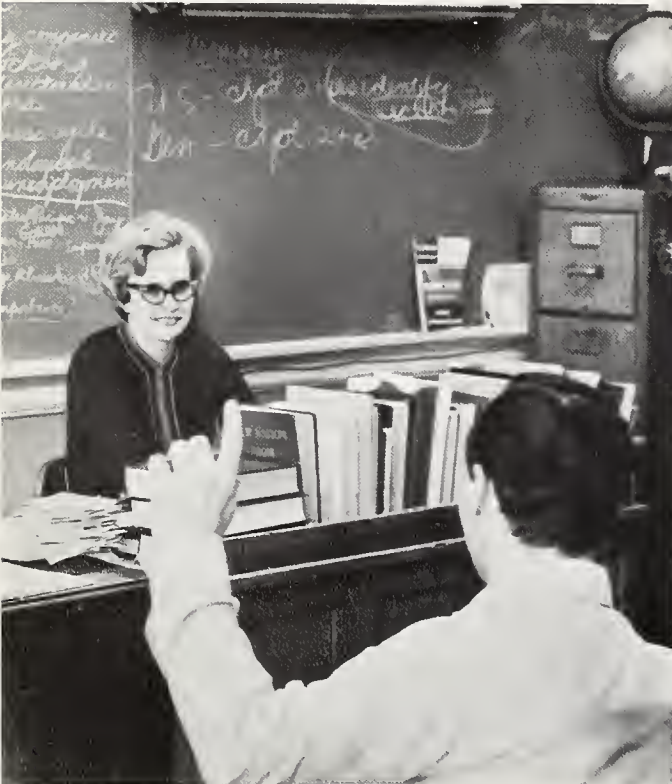

Classes Learn Understanding Of World Around Us,

Government II students, Tom Fay, Ron Doyle, Cheryl Warner, and Linda Young, enter into the discussion about the many factors and perplexing problems that influence the affairs of our nation and the world, especially the foreign aid program.

Mrs. Margaret Hilmert leads a class discussion in sophomore world history and answers the questions of her students.

Dennis Geiger looks over the shoulder of Miss Carol Edgar as she makes clearer one of the facts of United States history.

Study Government, History, Sociology, Economics

The South Side Social Studies Department strove to present to its students a strong foundation in United States and world history through classroom discussions, lectures, written material, films, and current events papers.

World history was taught to the sophomores in such a way as to impress them with the reasons for historical events rather than with just names and dates. Juniors in United States history applied the knowledge attained in their sophomore course to the history of our country. Students gained a greater understanding of the problems and difficulties facing the U.S. today by studying past events.

All seniors were required to take Government I for one semester. Unique this year was the creation of a special government class. This class followed the same course of study as the others, a detailed look at the basic American principles of government (i.e. the Constitution), but worked in greater depth.

During the second semester, seniors entered either Government II, economics, or sociology courses. Government II, another special class provided students with an opportunity to do independent research on our nation's foreign policies. Economics classes covered the fundamentals of our monetary system; and, in sociology courses, students discussed problems confronting the U.S. today.

Through all these courses, the Social Studies Department helped to prepare its students to take their places in the ever more complicated society of today.

Mr. Gary Crawford, assisted by Senior Jim Lohman, leads the discussion about the economic effects of stocks and bonds.

Mr. F. Roland Smith helps Juniors Lynne Marquart and Connie Zimmerman to theoretically solve the problems of Viet Nam.

The science of society, sociology, is a challenging course, as shown by these diligent seniors in the one-semester subject.

Mathematicians Learn Beauty, Utility In Courses

The Mathematics Department endeavored to prepare students for college and for the number of problems which most people encounter daily in life. In addition, the department presented foundations for concise thought and a background for other school subjects.

The college-bound sophomores began with a combination of plane and solid geometry, including all of the proofs and formulas for area or volume. Those in their junior year studied intermediate and advanced algebra, making good use of "X's" and "Y's" in solving many varied equations. For seniors, the department offered a course of trigonometry, analytic geometry, and a review of algebra in which students found their appendix tables of logs and trigonometric functions to be invaluable.

In the honors program, the last group of sophomores who had been accelerated in junior high took algebra in junior classes. Other sophomores and juniors in special classes studied their respective subjects more deeply, and they received some trigonometry in their courses. The seniors took a new course, mathematical analysis, in which they studied the theory of the number system by proving such statements as " $0 \times a = 0$ " or " $0 < 1$."

Students on a general or business course could take general math, again in preparation for the daily problems of a technological society.

Dave Bussard consults Bev Gouloff about several of the extremely challenging problems in third year algebra class.

Students in the senior special mathematics course study mathematical analysis as the class observes some fellow students working in an attempt to conquer several of the difficult and challenging problems presented by the teacher.

Of Basic Algebra, Trig, Geometry, Analytic Math

Rick Donahoo observes his fellow classmate, Gary Stoops, as they ponder on the subject of matrices in senior math class.

Gary Hansen, one of the special math students, matches wits with a perplexing math problem in his sixth period math class.

Kelly Business Students Study For Employment In

Typing students practice typing copy work to develop skill and improve on their speed and accuracy for later use.

South Side's Business Department offered an excellent opportunity for education because of its constant attempts at modernization and improvement. The general business branch strived to give its students a general economic education regardless of future profession. The clerical and stenographic branches offered vocational training preparatory to service in either occupation.

Business English offered practical education in the various problems that might be encountered by a secretary, such as capitalization, punctuation, paragraphing, and spelling.

Business law provided students with a basic knowledge about legal procedures and laws governing business transactions. In business problems, information concerning economic principles was useful in making decisions in business matters.

Personal typing was offered to non-business students to teach touch typing for home and college use. Four semesters of typing were provided for students on the vocational courses.

Four semesters of shorthand were offered to students on the vocational courses and the college preparatory course with special permission.

A new course this year, office procedures, offered general business branch students training in the use of business machines.

Mr. Ernest Walker conducts a drill in shorthand that will aid the students to develop skill and accuracy for a future job.

Tomorrow's Competitive World Of Opportunities

Business students learn the basic and essential skill of filing as they practice arranging special file boxes, a necessary task.

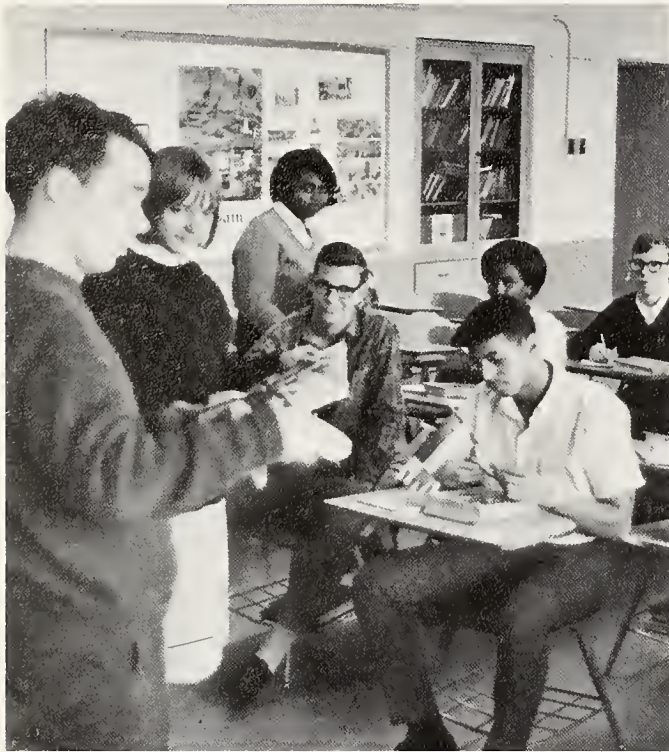

Commerce teacher Mr. Everett Havens leads a class discussion on the subject of business organization and management.

As bookkeeping students practice on imaginary accounts, several puzzle over the problems of balancing books; but after many hours of hard practice they become proficient in this skill which is essential in the world of commerce.

Language Students Build Better Education, Gain

Spanish students gain better Spanish background from the reports, recitations, and experiences of other students.

As Juniors Susan Jones and Jan Sullivan watch, Brazilian exchange student Senior Jairo Siwek dictates his French lesson.

Second-year Latin students renew their basic knowledge of Latin and gain skills from translations of Caesar's writings.

Proficiency In Latin, French, German, Spanish

South Side's Language Department consists of four languages, French, German, Latin, and Spanish. The purpose of the Language Department was to develop ease in speaking, reading, and writing a language and to develop an understanding of the history and culture of the civilization based on language.

In the first two years of French, conversation and vocabulary were stressed. The third and fourth year French students studied French writings as well as wrote original compositions in French. Films and tapes were used extensively to supplement the book.

First year German stressed grammar, and second year German stressed primarily the spoken language. Only two years of German, a relatively new subject at South Side, were offered.

In first year Latin pronunciation and basics of Latin grammar were stressed. In second year Latin social aspects of Roman life were studied along with selections from The Argonauts and Caesar's Gallie Wars. Third year Latin students read selections from Cicero's writings, and fourth year Latin students read selections from Vergil.

Vocabulary and the basic principles of grammar were emphasized in the first two years of Spanish. Advanced Spanish proposed to extend the use of the language through Spanish magazines and newspapers, tapes and themes written by the students.

Kay Barve, Joel Salon, Cathy Deal, and Sharon Kiger, fourth-year Latin students, study a map of Rome's ancient empire.

In advanced French class, Nathan Love, Jan Jones, Nancy Hill, and Ann Squires become characters in a play written in French dialogue. The basic subject of the play, La Guerre de Troie n'aura pas lieu is the events of the Trojan War.

Kelly Science Department Offers Students Chance

Senior Rob Williams records experimental results as classmates Liffy Keck and Mickey Peppler measure chemicals in lab.

Learning the scientific method for discovery and exploring the mysteries of nature were among the objectives of the Science Department.

In physics, the foundation for many other sciences, South Siders studied the laws which govern the universe by doing experiments and an endless number of problem sets. A new course, applied physics, was quite successful in presenting ideas and problems of physics to students who lacked extensive math backgrounds.

In the botany classes, students made use of microscopes to explore the detailed structure of plants. They increased their knowledge further through lectures and first-hand observations on a field trip.

In chemistry, amid the clatter of falling test tubes and crucibles, students in the lab analyzed solutions and compounds and studied varying reactions of different substances. The course discussed more the "why's" instead of the "what's" of chemistry; and the special class went still further in the discussion of theories.

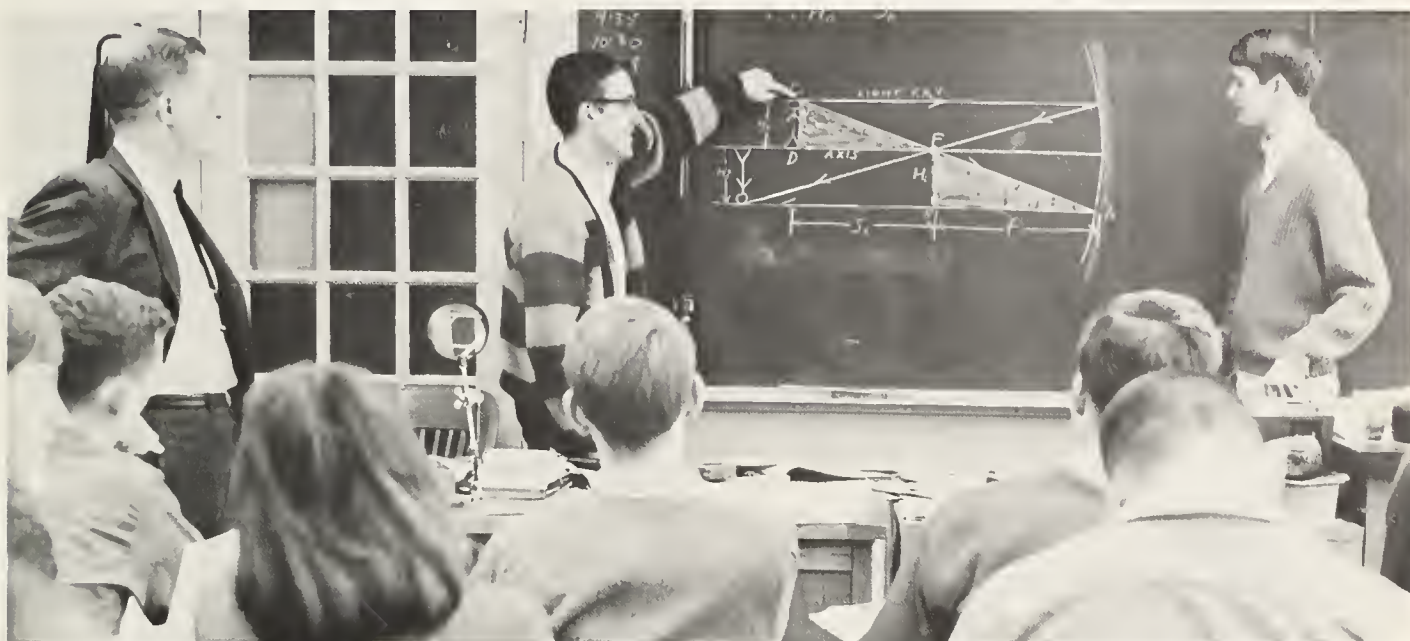

In physical geography, students learned about weather and geology, often taking time to examine fossils and minerals. The student was able to use the scientific method without resorting to any advanced mathematics.

Students found the science courses to be an important element of their curricula — many doors opened to reveal more answers.

Physical geography students discuss rock types and rock origins during a normal class period of the one-year course.

To Develop Practical Uses Of Scientific Methods

Senior Ray Snyder and Junior Chuck Fay demonstrate the basic principles of a real image projected by a concave mirror in an experimental to the onlooking Mr. Robert Petty and his class of junior and senior physics students.

Mark Ellingwood and Bill Archer conduct a simple electrical experiment during a day in applied physics, a new course.

Mr. Robert Weber watches as botany students Juniors Ann Spear and Julie Inskeep study the formation of a plant.

While Shop Classes Gain Skill In Industrial Arts,

The Industrial Arts Department at South Side offered its students an excellent chance to receive training from its skilled instructors and up-to-date equipment in the ever-growing industrial field.

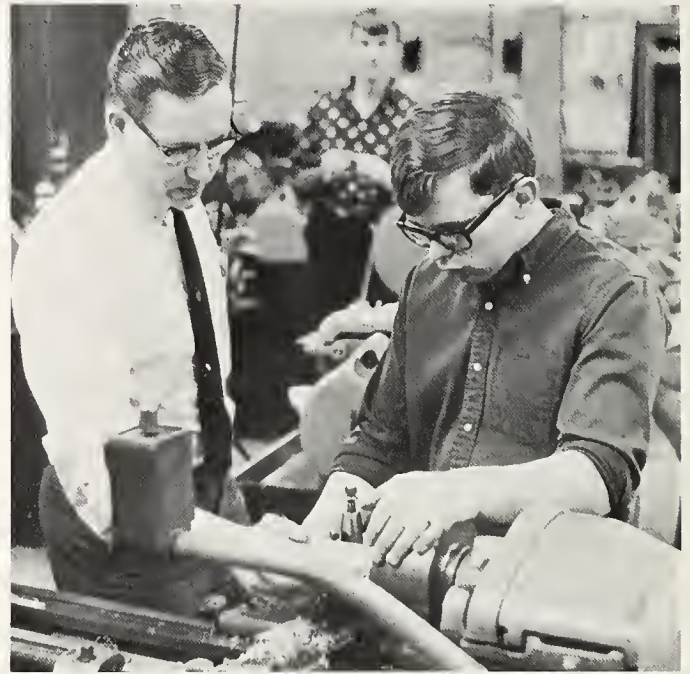

There were four divisions of the Industrial Arts Department at South Side, drafting, metal, wood, and power mechanics. A student electing industrial arts must have had one semester of drafting, metal, and wood before going on to a second term.

In the first semester of drafting, lettering and the preparation for drafting were taught. In the second semester of drafting, a study was made of perspective and sectioning. Students in the second year of drafting studied advanced illustrations.

Students learned the basic lathe and drill press operations in the first semester of metal. In further study students learned about advanced machinery.

Small motors were studied in the first year of power mechanics. In the second the principles and theory of electricity were studied along with the assembly of electric motors.

In the first semester of wood, students were taught to use hand tools. Advanced students learned the safe use of woodworking machines.

Senior Dave Diaz, assisted by Mr. Kenneth Surber, finishes his metal project on the metal lathe in a metalwork course.

Gene Smith admires the skill and know-how that goes into a drafting problem as he constructs a mechanical drawing.

Industrial arts students work on wood projects with the aid of hand tools and the wood lathe in a woodworking course.

Home Economics Classes Practice Use Of Domestics

Becky Brown demonstrates her sewing skills at the sewing machine as she works on one of her home economic projects.

To give the girls a well-rounded preparation for the extremely important job of being future homemakers, the Home Economics Department offered a wide variety of courses dealing with the various domestic skills.

The clothing course acquainted the girls with the operation of the sewing machine and the making of garments, varying from skirts and blouses in preliminary home economics to the making of suits and coats in the more advanced course. While learning about basic clothing construction, the girls also gained valuable knowledge in the formation, care, and uses of various fabrics as well as basic principles of wardrobe planning and management.

While food preparation was the basic area of study in the cooking course, students were also well versed in the related areas of nutrition, etiquette, and food marketing.

In the home management courses students learned the basic fundamentals of home finance and wise investment as well as many phases of interior decorating. As prescribed by the American Red Cross, students in the home nursing program were taught methods of home sanitation, disease prevention, and child care.

Thus, through study in these varied fields of home economics, our young women learned to be efficient homemakers of the future.

Girls work in the home economics kitchen, follow recipes, and learn cooking skills. Here students prepare baked goods for the oven, while others follow instructions for some delicious delight, perhaps their brownies or chocolate chip cookies.

Journalism, Speech Increase Communication Skill

Promoting interest and skill in public speaking and teaching clear, logical thinking were the major purposes of the Speech Department.

In public speaking at South Side, the time was split about half and half between lectures on the part of the instructor and the giving of speeches by the students. Much embarrassment arose in front of the class before the very common "freezing up" was overcome.

An accomplished feeling came to many as erect posture, easy movement, alertness of mind, direct eye contact, and a "selling" quality to the voice were more easily distinguishable in one's self.

In the Journalism Department the important grammatical functions of writing were stressed and various methods examined.

One day a week was spent in the Times room writing news stories, editorials, and features for the Times itself. A visit to the Fort Wayne Newspapers was one of the tasks undertaken by the class to give them a broader picture of the expanding news media. They, also, were responsible for the column in the Times, "This Week in Olden Times."

A deep insight into the preparation of a newspaper was gained from the superb study plan used.

Journalism students help fold the South Side Times for out of town and out of state delivery to hundreds of subscribers.

their fellow classmate, Janeen Badgley, in sixth period speech class, where students learn the correct speaking techniques.

Sophomore Jan Jones does one of the many stunts which are performed in tumbling class, part of the girls' curriculum.

The sophomore girls in general dance classes practice their dance routines for their performance in the Spring Show.

Gym, Tumbling, Dance Encourage Physical Fitness

The major purposes of the Physical Education Department this year were to develop and maintain maximum physical efficiency and to develop wholesome social and recreational ways.

Flag football, basketball, volleyball, handball, soccer, and softball were the team games stressed in the boys' gym classes.

The self-testing program was used, also, to give some measure of a boy's physical fitness by means of scores compiled in tests such as push ups and rope climbing.

Likewise, the strong intramurals program at South has proved to be a source of enjoyment for the boys at lunch and after school.

The performance of the girls' fitness came through the three areas: gym, dance, and advanced tumbling.

The gym classes consisted of games such as speedball, basketball, and volleyball. Teamwork and sportsmanship were major goals of the programs.

In the dance classes modern dance, ballet, folk dances, and simple jazz were practiced after a conditioning program and barwork had been completed.

The annual Spring Show was the feature of the year for the Girls' Physical Education Department. The theme and music were patterned after current television programs. The acrobatic stunts of the advanced tumblers and the smooth rhythm of the dancers gave a fitting picture of a very capable department.

Giant volleyball is a challenging and exhilarating sport as can be deducted from these boys' struggle with the large ball.

Kellys Acquire New Taste For Finer Arts In Life

Mr. Lester Hostetler aids several soloists and special singers in the practice for the traditional spring music assembly.

The Music Department offered South Side students many opportunities to pursue musical interests as it provided entertainment for the student body and the public.

Singers joined either the training, occasional, or concert choir. The concert choir performed for many school functions, such as the four music assemblies and P.T.A. meetings; and they sang for groups in churches, in business, and in junior high schools. Number ranged from the "Showboat Medley" to sacred music, from musical comedy tunes to ballads.

Instrumentalists had the choice of one of the three bands and the orchestra. The symphonic band, often accompanied by the occasional band, played for pep sessions, music assemblies, and home games; and its members participated in such functions as the Memorial Day Parade and concerts for junior highs. For basketball games, the band experimented with lighted shows like those of several years ago. In orchestra, musicians played selections from the classics up to current works from Broadway.

Other students studied the lives and works of representative composers from Bach to the present. A newly organized music appreciation class allowed students more opportunity to discuss in depth events of the music world.

Participation in the Majorettes and NISBOVA music contests was another way for students to enjoy the opportunities of the aesthetic field.

The string section of South Side's orchestra practices for one of the many music assemblies presented during the year.

In Fine Artistic Display, Musical Entertainment

This Indiana Sesquicentennial display, constructed by the art classes, was among the best in the state-sponsored art contest.

Juniors Sue Kellermeyer and Linda Draper prepare the art bulletin board where Kelly art work is displayed for view.

The Art Department strove to improve the students' artistic competence and facility with techniques. With the basic course of study centered on the basic elements, color, line, form, texture, and expression of ideas and emotions, emphasis was placed upon two and three dimensional design. Concentration on principles and elements of design with related problem-solving projects introduced students to the many materials available.

The more advanced classes delved into industrial design with the application of art to commercial fields. They redesigned magazine illustrations, architectural forms, and industrial products to make them more pleasing aesthetically. The culmination of the student's art training was the independent study course which allowed him to specialize in the media of his choice.

While the department formulated a rigid basic outline of areas to be covered, the choice of projects was left open. Four students designed a prize-winning panel depicting Indiana history. At Christmas, nine-foot banners of wisemen and drummer boys were displayed along with three-dimensional Christmas trees of abstract design. Through such creative projects, students learned various skills to convey their original ideas.

Linda Draper, Joyce Abramson, and John Reiterman show how geometric solids can take artistic form in art class.

Athletics

For South Side the 1966-1967 school year was a very successful one athletically. The green color of growth and prosperity spread throughout almost every part of the Kelly domain.

Starting off the year well in the fall were the Archer football and cross country teams, both of which came out of the season with winning slates. As South Side's mighty football squad rolled up an impressive string of eight victories this year, the harriers finished the year at 8-1, managing sixth in Sectionals. The Kellys did not stop there, however, for next the Archer hardwood squad had the terrific season, finishing 24-4 after going all the way to the State Finals in Indianapolis.

Wrestling was another green spot for the Archers as the Kelly team was 7-5 for the season with boys placing in both regional and state competition.

The 1966 golf team came through in fine style with a 13-5 slate, and big things were hoped for in 1967. The Kelly track team fought hard in 1966, but it could not quite manage a winning season. It was victorious over Culver in its first meet of this year, and predictions for 1967 were bright.

Rounding out the Archer sports was tennis. In 1966 the team had a 5-1 record, good enough for the runner-up spot in the city race.

All in all it was one of the brightest, greenest years in the sports history of the school. It serves as a fine tribute to all the boys and coaches who worked so hard for these successes.

Varsity Grid Squad Finishes Outstanding Season,

The 1966 Kelly squad lines up in the single-wing formation that South has made so famous during the past two seasons. Worman (47), Fleming (44), Junk (22), and Nolan (38) comprise the powerful Archer backfield. Visible as the Green linemen prepare to charge in their typical crushing style are Gaulden (89), Dunfee (58), Danley (75) and Hower (77).

Extending South Side Winning Streak To 18 Games

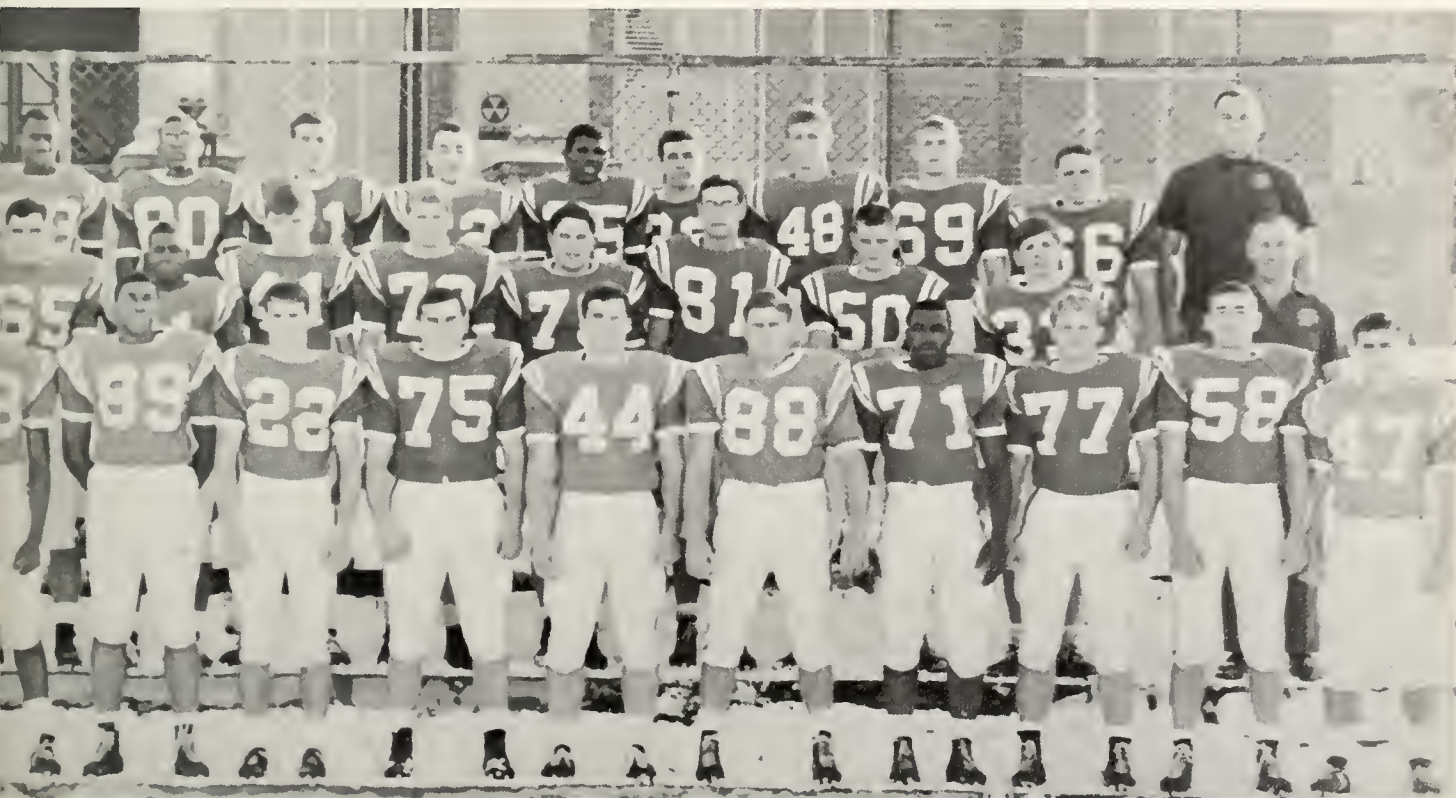

The fighting Kelly pigskin squad, guided by Robert Gernand and Walter Bartkiewicz, drove to an outstanding record for the season. Taking a leading position in both city and state standings, the team helped fulfill the dreams which began with South's 1965 City Championship. They built the two-year winning streak to 18 games and provided fans with some of the finest prep ball on record.

During the season the Archers climbed as high as third in Indiana's state gridiron ratings and clinched seventh position. They ended second in the city ratings, having waged an even fiercer battle in the local race. Until the close of the season, both South and Snider were undefeated in the city race, and it appeared as if they would share the coveted city crown. All of these dreams were shattered, however, when the Kellys were finally beaten by a scrappy Central Catholic team.

Despite the disappointment of the final game, the Kelly's 18 wins remain a record that Archers will always remember. The excitement which the squad brought its fans made 1966 a truly remarkable year for the Green.

It is hard to tell whether All-State Tackle Mike Danley (75) and Tom Fleming are fighting each other or Madison Heights.

As always, a host of tacklers was needed to bring down powerful Tom Fleming. Linemen Jim Lohman (88), Steve Hower (77), and Don Beardsley (85) move in to help as Tom bulls through the Central Catholic line for a touchdown.

All-City Team Claims 14 Kelly Powerhouse Stars

Coaches Lindenberg, Bartkiewicz and Gernand study the game with Greg Gaulden (89) and All-State Tackle Jim Ule.

With so many experienced lettermen back from last season's undefeated City Champion squad, big things were expected of the Archer team this year — and big things it produced. Employing a stingy defense and a powerful, diversified offense, the 1966 team outscored its opponents at a rate of over four to one, 38-8 to be precise.

In the traditional pre-season Jamboree contest, the Green registered a convincing 13-0 win over the Snider Panthers. Next, in its first game of the regular season, South "rose up" and defeated a stubborn Bishop Luers team by a close 20-15 count. Huge Tom Fleming, the city scoring champion, provided the bulk of the Kelly offense in this game, scoring all three touchdowns.

Fledgling Bishop Dwenger was the next victim of the South Side steamroller, being crushed 53-6. South held its opponents scoreless in its next three contests. Led by Barry Worman, last year's city scoring champion, the Archer powerhouse trounced New Haven by 40-0. Returning to city competition, the Kellys proceeded to smother Arch-rival North Side, 20-0, and Central, 31-0. Worman substantially led the field against Central, scoring four touchdowns.

South reached its scoring peak for the season in the game with Elmhurst, outscoring the Trojans 54-7. Next came the hard-fought Huntington game in which the Archers had to really struggle for their 27-14 win. The Green also had a hard time with the well-regarded Madison Heights squad, taking, nonetheless, a substantial 32-7 victory. It took a last-minute touchdown for Central Catholic to beat South Side, 24-20, in the final game of the season.

Individuals Receive State Football Recognition

An All-State pick in both his junior and senior years, Tom Fleming, 1966 city scoring champion, plows for yardage.

Junior Varsity Fights To Successful 6-1 Record

Gary Hall (68), Bill Moore (97), Al Williams (62), and Bill Watson (13) mow down a powerless opposing ball carrier.

South Side's football prospects for two years from now, if not as soon as next year, look bright due to the sparkling 6-1 record of the Archer sophomore grid-iron squad. In a situation somewhat similar to that of the varsity, the Kelly reserve team, led by Coach Glen Stebing, won six games in a row. It was not beaten until its very last contest.

Playing in a single-wing formation much like the varsity's, the sophomore team conquered Bishop Dwenger in its first game by a score of 8-0. After blanking Central Catholic by a score of 13-0, the reserves defeated Concordia, 14-7. In that contest, Mark Novak registered the first Kelly touchdown, and wingback Bobby Lucas scored on a 45-yard run.

North Side was the next Kelly victim, three goals by Archer's Lucas forcing their 18-0 defeat. The highest scoring game was with Bishop Luers; South won, 27-6. In its sixth game, the reserves slew the Panthers of Snider, 21-0. The Green was then defeated by Central, 14-7. The final game of the season, scheduled with Elmhurst, was snowed out.

Fred Lee (64) lands a Central ball carrier for a loss as his fellow reserve teammates Bob Striverson (45), John Schmidt (63), Mike Roberts (78), Bobby Lucas (50), and Bob Laster (79) break through the Tiger's line to help.

Kelly Cross Country Men Finish With 9-7 Record

Archer harrier Jimm Nidlinger, who paced this year's cross country team consistently, takes a breather after a run.

This year's Kelly cross country team, well-supplied with experienced runners from last season's winning squad, compiled a respectable 9-7 record. In addition, the Archer harriers placed fifth in their own invitational meet and sixth in the Shoaff Park Sectional meet won by Valparaiso.

The team started the year well by winning its first two meets. In the first meet against South Adams, the Green failed to capture first place but did manage to take places two through eleven, finishing with a strong 20-43 victory. South Side then defeated Lakeland, 24-33, in the second meet, with Nidlinger and Sawvel finishing one-two. Kokomo was too powerful for the Green, however, trouncing it, 16-47. South bounced right back in its next meet, beating Snider, Central Catholic, and Bishop Luers while bowing only to Elmhurst. In a six-team meet on October 6, the Kellys managed to win two, losing three. In the last regular meet of the season the Archer squad downed Snider and Concordia and lost to New Haven and Elmhurst. Jimm Nidlinger led the Archers' Sectional finish, followed by Sawvel, Russell, Teague, and Fortney.

South Makes Final Four By Topping Michigan City;

Tom Motter, and Steve Kimbrough. Others savoring the victory over Hamilton are Steve Loomis, Larry Rutledge, Chad Stettler, Mel Rutledge, Paul Nelson, Larry Dray, Jim McLaughlin, and head coach Don Reichert.

Senior Chuck Nelson Wins Coveted Trester Award

This year was certainly a green and productive one for the South Side basketball squad. South could have been defeated in the first game of the sectionals — but it was not. Central was favored by many to win that game, but the Archers proved many people wrong — and they continued to prove people wrong by defeating the favorites all the way down to the State Finals at Hinkle Fieldhouse.

The Kelly team was finally defeated by Lafayette in the second afternoon game of the Finals because South was without the invaluable services of super-star Willie Long, who had left the game on fouls in the third quarter. The remaining boys fought valiantly but could not quite turn the trick.

In the first tourney game against Central, the Archers were also without Willie for part of the game. As a matter of fact, South was without all but two of its starters by the end of the game. Chuck Nelson, who later went on to win the coveted Trester Award, was the hero of this game, holding the entire team together.

Another high point in the tournament game came when South knocked off the defending state champion Michigan City by means of a stubborn defense. Again Willie was the big star; but as a whole the entire season was a team effort, each boy giving his all end each showing flashes of greatness. South did not win the tourney, but the boys were champions in their own way.

Still in uncontrolled ecstasy after upsetting Michigan City are Chuck Nelson, who later went on to win the Trester Award at the State Finals; Willie Long, who sparked the team all year; Paul Nelson; and Ron Lowery, the Archer's sixth man.

This was the one that got away from Wonderful Willie in the hard-fought contest with Lafayette at Hinkle Fieldhouse.

Kelly Team Completes '66-67 Season With 24-4 Mark

Despite being surrounded by opposing players, Kelly forward Jim Wallis guides one of his deft shots toward the bucket.

In preparation for its fine showing in the tournament, the Archer basketball squad had a very successful regular season, losing only three games. At the start of the year the Kelly team rattled off a string of fourteen consecutive victories without a loss. In the process of winning so many games in the first half of the season, the Green captured the Irish Holiday Tournament for the second year in a row.

South Side's first loss of the season came at the hands of a stubborn North Side team. Steady Jim Wallis was out of the Kelly lineup because of an appendicitis operation, and South bowed despite a 28-point performance by Willie Long. The Archers then bounced back temporarily onto the victory trail, venting their anger on fledgling Bishop Dwenger.

After downing Concordia and Snider, South ran up against the fighting Tigers of Central, who went on to become the 1966-67 city champions. The quick, determined Tigers were given quite a battle by the Kelly five in game which could have gone either way. In the final game of the regular season, another group of Tigers gave the Archers trouble — this time the Tigers of Warsaw. This game was Jim Wallis' first since his operation, and South was not up to the tall, hot-shooting Bengals.

Chuck Nelson, Sam Whitt, and head coach Don Reichert. This squad, Reichert's last, finished the season with a fine 24-4 mark. The ability and sportsmanship shown by the team all year cumulated in the State Tournament in which they played.

Reserve Squad Fights To Gain Winning City Record

Since the Archer's varsity basketball team will lose four of its starting five and three substitutes, the reserve squad will be an important part of the outcome of next year's varsity team. The Kelly reserves finished the season with ten wins and thirteen losses. Coach Preston Brown's team held a 6-4 city record.

The starting five usually consisted of both juniors and sophomores. Paul Nelson, Larry Dray, Steve Loomis, Larry Rutledge, Tim Rietdorf, Rex Melchi, Sam Whitt, Clarence Starks, Doug Leakey, and Ken Cornacchione were the ten players who saw the most action.

The team opened the season with a loss to Southport but beat Ossian two nights later. A three-game losing streak followed before the Archers won their second game against Central Catholic. They dropped contests to New Haven and Concordia but came back with victories over Central Catholic again and Bishop Luers. South Side lost to Snider, Mishawaka, Elmhurst, and North Side, and beat Madison Heights and Goshen before they started a four game winning streak. Central and Warsaw also proved too much for the Kellys.

Sam Whitt led the team in scoring with 133 tallies and a very respectable 40% shooting average. Tim Rietdorf scored 116 points, Rex Melchi 115, Larry Dray 100, and Paul Nelson 98. Sam Whitt and Rex Melchi were the team's leading rebounders and Tim Rietdorf was the squad's top assist man.

Warming up before their basketball game with the Warsaw Tigers are the Archer reserve players. The team lost this game and completed the season with a 10-13 won-lost scorecard.

These are the members of the reserve basketball team who played most often. They are, from left to right, front row, Tim Rietdorf, Denny Lake, Clarence Starks, Merrill Phillips, Norm Neuenschwander; back row, Coach Preston Brown, Steve Loomis, Kenny Cornacchione, Rex Melchi, and Doug Leakey. Their fair record was due to lack of experience.

Archer Wrestlers Finish 7-5 In Sophomore Season;

Archer grappler, Senior John Penisten, who went undefeated all the way to regional tourney, wrestles a boy to the mat.

South Side's wrestling team, only in its second year of varsity competition, had another very successful season, closing out the year with a 7-5 slate and placing fifth in the Sectional Wrestling Tournament. Two of its members, Mike Danley, and John Penisten, made it to the Regionals with Danley going all the way to the State tournament in the heavyweight division before being defeated.

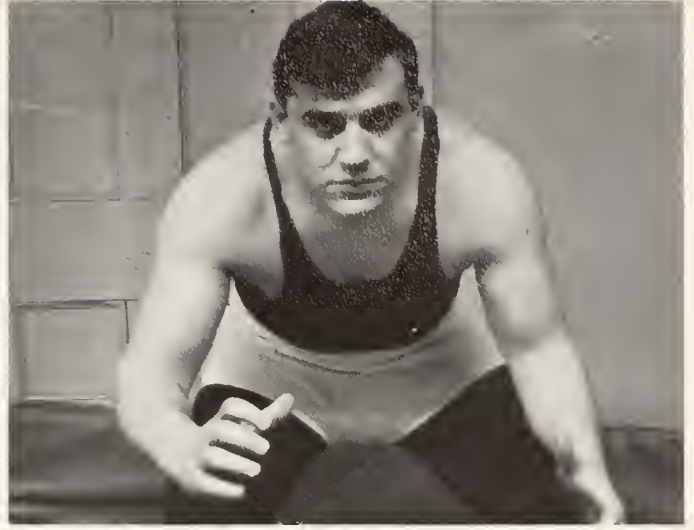

As was last year's team, the weight divisions ranged from 95 pounds to heavyweight (180 pounds and over). The Archer grapplers in order of their weights were Phil Erli, Barry Nordblom, Tim Horn, Jim Brookhart, John Penisten, Tony Moran, Jack Dunifon, Ken Harding, Steve Weinraub, William Watson, Gene Smith, and Mike Danley. Sophomore Bill Watson wrestled well in the 154 pound class before being put out for the season with an injury. Dale Lord also wrestled in the 103 pound division.

The Green started the season with a flurry of impressive victories. The Kelly wrestlers trounced Madison Heights, 38-18, in the first meet of the year and then buried North Side, 44-8, the next week.

Then in an away meet, the Archers beat a rugged Elmhurst team, 29-20. After traveling to Lakeland, where they gained a sparkling 37-11 win, South Side's matmen returned home to clobber Central Catholic's Irish by a 46-8 count. South Side's first defeat of the year came as it was edged, 27-26, by the tough Decatur squad. The Kellys bounced back to beat Elmhurst again, 37-11, but then fell to Central, 28-19, before topping Snider, 23-21. After bowing to New Haven, 27-15, the Archers placed third in the Goshen tourney. South Side fell to defeat in its last two meets of the regular season, losing to Concordia, 32-18, and Warsaw, 33-17. The injury-plagued Green bounced back for the Sectionals.

Track Team Holds Promise For Successful Season,

Trackmen Jim Highley and Barry Worman practice to polish their form in running the hurdles, both low and high types.

The South Side track team opened its 1967 season with a 66½-51½ victory over Culver Military Academy. The field event men did exceptionally well with Tom Fleming setting a meet record in the shot put with a throw of 53'10¼". Jimm Nidlinger set a record in the two-mile run with a time of 10:52.5.

In dual meets during 1966, South defeated Auburn and New Haven but lost to Culver, Kokomo, North, and Central. In triangular meets the cindermen won two and placed second in one. In April South participated in the Hoosier Relays at Bloomington. At the Delphi Relays the team finished second; but at the North Side Relays, South placed fifth. In the Sectionals nine men earned the privilege to compete in the Regionals. At the Regionals, Art Walker was first in the shot put, Willie Long placed fourth in the high jump, and the mile relay team was fifth. Walker finished third at State.

South Side has an experienced and well-coached team and should have a good season. Mr. Frank Geist, head coach, will be in charge of the distance runners. The sprinters and hurdlers will be working under the supervision of Mr. Thomas Lindenberg, and Mr. Pres Brown will coach the field event men.

Encouraged by a win in their first meet, the coaches and team all hope for a successful season.

The members of this year's track team are, from left to right, first row: manager Dave Howard, Tom Russell, Fred Orr, Tom Braun, Ron Lowery, Gary Stoops, Tom Fleming, Greg Gaulden, Barry Worman, Bill Barker, John Mumy, Jimm Nidlinger, Bob Fortney, Denny Teague, Jim Wallis, Coach Frank Geist; second row: Bob Lucas, Jeff Olson, Dave Wolman, Lorenzo Stewart, Mike Howard, Steve Sell, Doug Becker, Don Sawvel, John Lumppp, Neil Weikart, Steve Loomis, Jim Highley, Scott Lougheed, Bob Laster, Jim Kendricks; third row: Coach Tom Lindenberg, Alan Hofer, Dan Borgmann, Rick Meyer, Ted Warfel, Randy Wamsley, Tom Rehner, Norm Neuenschwander, Ron Prange, Keith Ponader, Bob Shopoff, Dan Ketcham, Greg Monroe, Steve Sundell, manager Bill Teague, manager Bill Schwalm. These boys comprise a team with high hopes for the track season. There are many returning lettermen and also some very promising sophomores.

Sophomore Dan Borgmann, Junior Scott Lougheed, and Senior Bill Barker hold high hopes for a good season of pole-vaulting.

Five promising candidates for the 1967 South Side golf squad hope to spark the team to another winning season. Left to

Kelly Linksmen Finish 1966 Season With 13-5 Mark;

Senior Chuck Nelson looks on dubiously as Jim Lohman prepares to execute a difficult "tree" shot in golf practice recently.

This season could prove to be a tough one for the Kelly golf team, since last June brought the graduation of four of the top six men on the links squad. Gone are Craig Alvis, Stan Pfeiffer, Dana Trier, and All-City player Art Robson while Jim Lohman, last year's number three man, and Chuck Nelson, number five last year, return as the core of this season's Archer golf squad.

The 1966 season was a very green and productive one for South Side as the Archers rolled to a good winning record of thirteen wins, five losses, and no ties. In addition, the Green placed fourth out of seven in the All-City Tournament at Brookwood and fifth out of twenty-nine in the Sectional Tournament at Auburn.

The Archers began the season in good style, beating Garrett, New Haven, and Central Catholic. After bowing to Concordia, South Side ran off a streak of six straight victories, topping Snider, North Side, North Side again, New Haven, Garrett, and Bshop Luers. Then Concordia, the Archer's old nemesis, came back to defeat the Kelly team again.

South then bounced back to top Snider. After the rugged All-City Tournament, the Kelly team skidded and dropped matches to North Side and Auburn. After beating Central Catholic, the Archers bowed to Elmhurst. The Green got back on the beam at the end of the season to down Auburn and Bishop Luers.

Last season saw two Kelly linksmen on the All-City squad, Art Robson making it for the second time and Stan Pfeiffer for his first time. In the All-City Tourney, Robson was medalist with a 78, while Lohman, Pfeiffer, and Nelson all had averages of 89.

Reaching low to block a shot is Archer racketman Chad Stettler. This year was Chad's third year on the varsity team.

Kerry Kaplan stretches to return a low backhand. Kerry, number two man on the team, is a returning letterman in tennis.

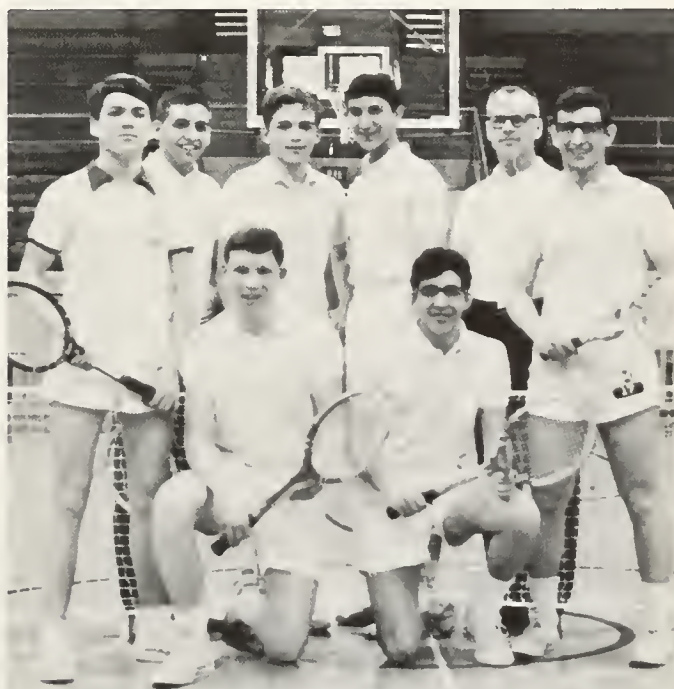

South Side Tennis Squad Runner-Up In City Race

The South tennis team ran its 1966 consecutive undefeated city matches string to nine straight before being beaten by Concordia in the second to the last match of the season. The team finished with a 5-1 city record which was good enough for second place in the city race.

The team started the season right with a 7-0 win over Central. After wins against Huntington and Muncie Burris and a loss to Bluffton, the team beat North Side 5-2 for its second city series victory. In its next city match, the team defeated Bishop Luers 4-3. A 5-2 win over Central Catholic followed losses to Goshen and Bluffton. Two more losses to Peru and Howe Military preceded the decisive game with Concordia. In the last match of the season, the team defeated Elmhurst 4-3.

During the tennis season the team entered two tournaments. In the Muncie Burris Singles Tournament Archers Chad Stettler and Kerry Kaplan won first-round matches before being eliminated. The other entrants from South, Mark Smith, Steve Weinraub, and Parke Watson, were beaten in the first round.

In the other tournament, the South Side Doubles Tournament, the number one doubles team consisting of Chad Stettler and Kerry Kaplan won their division. The number two team made up of Mark Smith and Greg Black lost in the first round of play.

The members and lettermen of the 1967 Archer tennis team from the left are, kneeling, Bill Turnley and Joel Salon; standing, Leland Powell, Chad Stettler, Mark Smith, Kerry Kaplan, varsity coach Mr. Everett Havens, and Steve Weinraub.

Mr. Clair Motz Directs Kelly Intramural Program;

Two sophomore mural men prepare to engage in a healthful game of handball deep down in the "hidden" court of school.

Mural man Al Williams strains as hard as he can to clear the bar in the high jump, one of the many facets of intramurals.

South Side has long been very proud of its intramural sports program, one of the finest in the nation. Mr. Clair Motz is the able director of the extensive program, which just finished its thirty-eighth year of offering healthful fun and competition to boys in a myriad of exciting sports.

In order to give boys more of a fair chance to compete with others of the same size, most sports are divided into weight classes—light, middle, and heavy. There are both noon and night leagues to make it more convenient for participants, the primary goal of the program being to give everyone a chance to play in the sports.

Flag football was the first sport on the agenda, beginning in the fall. The bowling league, in its second year, began in the fall and continued throughout most of the year. There was also a weekend horseshoe tournament and a tennis tournament. Rounding out the fall activities was an intramural cross country team, which had its annual meet with the reserve squad.

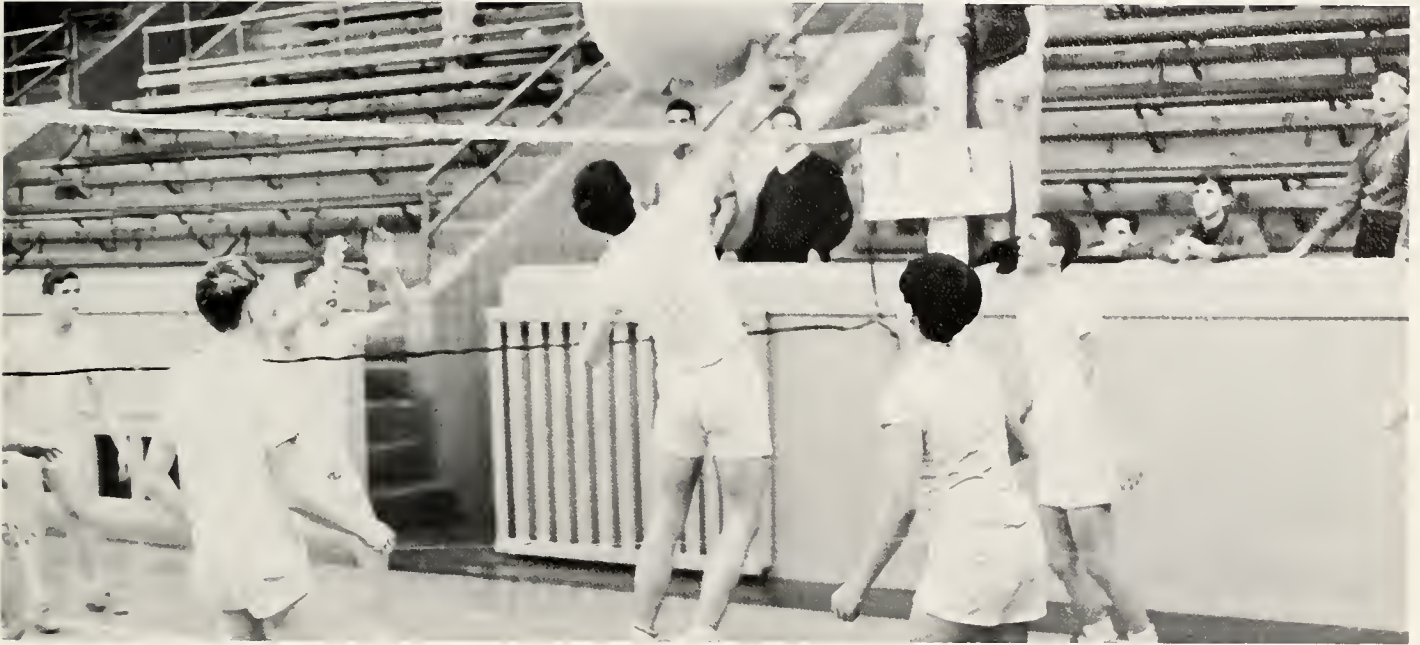

Winter sports of basketball, handball, volleyball, and giant volleyball proved very popular. Climaxing the roundball season was the freethrow tournament. Spring sports were begun with pingpong and badminton.

A spring tennis tourney, a golf tourney, and a track and field day closed out another successful year for the noted intramural sports program of South Side.

Mural Men Take Part In Large Variety Of Sports

With a loud grunt and a healthy swat, a member of a noon giant volleyball team powers the ball over the net. This program was one of many offered to all boys at South Side who were not on regular athletic teams and wanted sports activity.

Referee C. L. Turner has just tossed the ball up, and members of two intramural basketball teams vie for it in noon play.

Intramural director, Mr. Clair Motz poses next to the trampoline in the boys' gymnasium, the scene of many of his duties.

Striking a grandiose pose are advanced tumblers Janice Jones, Gail Lochner, Karen Kessler, Barbara Carrion, Dianne Rose-berry, Beverly Chipko, Carol Post, Betty Carpenter, and Sandra Hegerfield. Standing are Abigail VanKirk, Linda Draper.

Spring Show Highlights Soph Gym Classes, Dancers

From the very beginning of the year to the end, the girls of GAA were bustling with action. The center of their activity was the Girl's Gym, where they got together every Monday after school for an opportunity to obtain some healthful exercise.

The year's activities were divided into five main groups for tournaments — speedball, basketball, volleyball, and softball. After dividing themselves into teams, the spunky girls went all out to help their teams win while still having fun.

As reward for their endeavors, the girls were given points, which were won from such individual efforts as attendance, tennis, table tennis, and badminton. Members of the organization could also earn extra points by means of hiking, swimming, skating, and bowling. Numerals were awarded to those girls who had earned 300 or more points while letters were given to those girls who had amassed 1000 points. A pin was awarded to those who had totalled 1500 points. At year's end the senior with the highest point total was honored by having her name inscribed on the GAA point plaque.

The annual GAA Recognition Banquet with the theme "It's a Small World" was on January 16 and proved to be one of the high points of the GAA year. Laura Simmons, president of GAA presided, aided by Dianne Wolfe, vice-president; Judy Rice, point recorder; and Barbara Ross, sports manager.

All the girls' gym classes and dance classes participated in the annual Spring Show. This event allowed the girls to show off their talents, all the way from dance to tumbling to team activities.

Mrs. Alice Keegan and Laura Simmons plan GAA spring programs with the help of Dianne Wolfe, Barb Ross, and Judy Rice.

Organizations

The course of extracurricular activities in the past several years can be linked to the growth of a healthy plant. This year the plant reached a new level of maturity and blossomed forth as never before. It was a "green year" for organizations at South Side!

Extracurricular activities at South have been going through a metamorphosis for the past few years. This year the trend achieved a definite height in popularity as reflected by increased membership and interest exhibited throughout the club system. Students showed a desire to hold positions of responsibility and to participate completely. However, this was just one side of the picture of organization life. Along with the concentration and seriousness of responsibility went the need for complete relaxation and recreation.

This combination of extremes — seriousness and levity — directly affected the structure and makeup of student activities at South Side. Clubs which offered members positions of almost total responsibility in leadership, programming, or original ideas reached new highs in membership and new levels of active student interest. Likewise, social clubs offered a refuge of relaxation to more members. The total organizations program showed a new vitality and drew an even larger percentage of South Side students into active participation, therefore justly contributing to the success of all phases of Kelly life.

With the rubber cement always handy, Miss Anne White and Dianne Wolfe put together the weekly edition of the Times.

General Managers Seniors Cindy Powers and Joel Salon correct an article for an upcoming edition of the weekly paper.

Layouts, Taking Pictures Keep Times Staff Busy

This year's newspaper staff tried especially hard to follow the excellent example set by the preceding years' staffs. The 1965--1966 Times won an All-American ranking from the National Scholastic Press Association, as well as an International Honor Rating and George H. Gallup Award from the Quill and Scroll Society, an International Society of high school journalists.

General managers Dianne Wolfe, Joel Salon, and Cindy Powers put in much time on this year's Times. Editors, writers, copyreaders, agents, drivers, and folders assisted them. In order to allow more people to gain experience in working on a newspaper, three different major staffs prepared the newspaper during the school year. The first staff, headed by Dianne Wolfe, went to work about one month before the opening day of classes. From then on, the staff published a paper every week without fail, except for holiday breaks.

The business manager and her staff completed most of their work before school started by soliciting advertisements from local businesses.

Faculty advisor Miss Anne White, who led the Times in its forty-fifth year, closely supervised every facet of the newspaper.

Working on the makeup for the weekly edition of the Times, a morning job, are Juniors Julie Inskeep and Jan Schmitz.

Totem Staff Tries Harder To Meet All Deadlines,

Editor Liffy Keck and Associate Editor Jan Weintraub put many long hours into making this forty-fifth volume of the Totem the best one ever. They started training for their positions last year as junior editors.

Liffy and Jan coordinated the work of eight editors, four junior editors, photographers, typists and other sundry assistants. The Totem was divided into eight sections with each having a different deadline for completion.

The faculty section had the first deadline because of its relative stability. Next, the underclass section with sophomore and junior editors was finished. The deadlines for the academics, organizations, and senior sections followed in quick order. Next due was the opening section on which Liffy and Jan collaborated. The sports section had various deadlines as the different seasons followed one another. The index was completed after all the other sections.

Photographers Sandy Rothberg, Terry Seabold, and Stan Fishman worked hard taking candid shots and group pictures. Not to be forgotten was the wonderful guidance which Miss Anne White offered. She proved to be a guiding light and source of inspiration for all who worked on the Totem.

Jan Weintraub, associate editor, and Liffy Keck, editor-in-chief, smile even amid stacks of work remaining to be done.

Totem advisor Miss White, seated, and editors Rob Williams, Steve Duncan, Mike Phelps, Melissa Morrill, and Linnea Kettler look relieved to have the final copy completed and the major jobs of writing and rewriting finished for the year.

Concentrating on their favorite subjects — themselves — Totem photographers Sandy Rothberg and Terry Seabold are caught by the lens of another photographer on the staff, Sophomore Stan Fishman, as they cavort in the Totem office.

Pegasus, Safety Council Work In Different Areas;

The seventh edition of the Pegasus, South Side's literary magazine, presented an anthology of original works by students. Editor-in-Chief Judi Squires and Miss Anne White made the final judgment on the articles, written in English class or out of school. After the selections were chosen, the staff proofread them, planned the makeup, and added the artwork.

The title of the magazine was taken from an old Roman myth about a winged horse. With a kick of his feet, the horse created a fountain that served as an inspiration to poets. Since then, the Pegasus has symbolized imagination.

The publication of the Pegasus required the combined efforts of the student body, the faculty, and the Pegasus staff. Only the energy and unusual interest of all these people at South Side made the Pegasus, one of the few high school literary magazines, possible.

Sophomore Ann Turnley finds herself very busy as she plans the art work to be featured with poetry in the 1967 Pegasus.

The progress of the Pegasus sales campaign brings smiles to the faces of three staff members. Melissa Morrill, Judi Squires, and Karen Schlademan all appear pleased with what they see "in the books;" more subscriptions mean a better Pegasus.

Senior Judi Squires interrupts her work as Pegasus editor to discuss the art work with Sophomore Ann Turnley, art editor.

Both Entail Cooperation, Interest Of All Members

Safety Council officers Alan Hofer, Cheryl Winter, and Mark Piepenbrink evaluate the results of the safe drivers test administered by Safety Council representatives to all home-rooms. Miss Carol Edgar, sponsor, supervises the meeting.

The Safety Council, which is made up of representatives from each homeroom under the leadership of Cheryl Winter, president; Mark Piepenbrink, vice-president; Sandee Foelber, secretary-treasurer; Sue Scott, program chairman; and Miss Carol Edgar, faculty advisor, sponsored many activities throughout the school year.

The members of the Safety Council carried out a campaign against jaywalking, highlighted by a presentation over the school public-address system. They painted "Cross Here" and "Don't Cross Here" signs on sidewalks around the school. After this project, jaywalkers received warning tickets.

The officers prepared a driver's test administered to the whole school, sponsored an "auto check," and conducted "Safety Sam Week" for the second consecutive year. These programs, along with films and speakers, proposed to promote safety in the school and community.

Quill And Scroll, National Merit, Service Club

Quill and Scroll: Beth Harsch and Carolyn Russ, front row: Barb Simmons, Karen Schlademan, Jenny Strehlow, back row.

South Side had nine National Merit Semi-finalists this year. These students were part of the fourteen thousand high school seniors throughout the United States to receive this honor based on the scores of a qualifying test taken in their junior year.

These semi-finalists became finalists by receiving the endorsement of their school, substantiating their scores on a second examination, and submitting information about their achievements and interests. Each finalist received a Certificate of Merit and became eligible for a Merit Scholarship, a four-year award with stipends varying according to need.

Another honorary society at South Side is Quill and Scroll, the International Journalism Honor Society for high school seniors. Miss Anne White chose the Quill and Scroll members from seniors active on the Times for two years or the Totem for one. Other requirements are being in the top third of the class and having done outstanding publications work.

Members are eligible for the Rowena Harvey Award, given to the top journalist on Senior Recognition Day. Also, Quill and Scroll members are honored at a banquet in the spring.

Study hall service workers Pam Frantz, Tom Tritch, and Maureen Glass compile attendance records to help teachers.

Senior Debbie Shaw smiles with joy and surprise after being awarded the Randolph Jacobs trophy by Mr. Samuel Jackson.

Recognize Outstanding Achievement By Students

The Service Club was actually not a club and had no officers, meetings, or projects. It was made up of service workers who were together only once, for their annual potluck.

At the potluck Senior Debbie Shaw received the Randolph Jacobs Cup for her record of service to the school. Randolph Jacobs was a student at South Side before he was killed in World War II. His parents donated a trophy in his memory to be given annually to a student who aided the school. Making the presentation even more meaningful, Randolph Jacobs' sister and children were present at the ceremony.

Service workers were those students who spent a period or more every day helping a member of the faculty or administration. Among their varied duties were recording scores, taking attendance, and supervising labs.

The second major honor to be bestowed on service workers, besides the Jacobs trophy, occurs on Senior Recognition Day. For this day, the junior girls who service for Miss Van Gorder act as the Spirit of South Side and her court and assist in the ceremony.

A service worker received one point for each hour of service at school, two for each hour at home. The sponsor, Mr. Sam Jackson, kept a record of all points and awarded pins on Recognition Day.

The Reverend Mr. Lynn Henry addresses the members of Service Club at their annual potluck and meeting in the fall.

Four Clubs Donate Time In Service To School; Red

The members of the Library Service Club are busy all year doling out files, locating missing books, and finding requested volumes. The library acquired three thousand new volumes this year; this addition increased the responsibilities of each member. The twenty-five girls, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Deputy and Mrs. Doris Barthlow who taught them their duties in the library, planned the spring picnic to close their year.

Tape recordings, record players, and moving picture projectors—the knowledge of the Projectionists includes all these aids. Fifteen loyal Archers, under the direction of Mr. Ned Yingst, gave up study halls, lunch periods, and after-school time to help with the operation of audio-visual equipment. Mr. Yingst trained each boy who volunteered in the use of all the complicated machinery found in the audio-visual office.

Mr. LaVerne Harader again led the Booster Club through a year of capable service. Members of this club attended every South Side home football and basketball game, selling snacks and refreshments to all the fans. The profits of these endeavors went toward the purchase and care of cheerleading uniforms.

John Ellis and Alex Early who usually work diligently show that there is always room for fun and enjoyment amid work.

Cross, Vesta Strive To Fulfill Community Needs

First row: Karen Rutkowski (treasurer), Linda Eagleson (president), Judi Squires (vice-president and program chairman). Second row: Peggy Smith (sergeant-at-arms), Sue Kellermeyer, Barbara Carrion (point recorder). Third row: Diann Dibble, Terri Lambert, Marjory Dickmeyer, Janice Brudi. The girls served the community as Red Cross members.

Mr. Richard Sage and a group of about eleven boys took care of all ushering at South Side's home basketball games this year. The membership in the Ushers Club was strictly voluntary, but once a boy joined the club he was expected to attend the home games to which he had been assigned. The boys took care of seating the adult season ticket holders and distributing programs.

The calendar of the Red Cross Club was very full this year. The thirty members of this club, led by President Linda Eagleson, were dedicated to the purpose of serving the community through their special projects. They focused their attention on the Johnny Appleseed School during the first semester; the second semester they set up a talent show and carnival at the Veteran's Hospital. Mr. John Arnold, leader of this hard-working group, aided the students greatly in choosing worthy causes for their work and also setting up the programs after they had been chosen.

A spring style show, a tea for the faculty, and a mother-daughter tea were all part of Vesta's busy schedule for this school year. One project in which all the girls took special pride was providing candy treats for the children at the State School.

Working on the Christmas project are Vesta members Pam Proctor, Susan Means (vice-president), Sharon Merz (president), Gloria Griebel, and Mrs. Barbara Berg, Vesta sponsor.

Lettermen Collect Canned Goods, Sponsor Dinner;

Senior lettermen Dave Junk, Chuck Nelson, and Tom Fleming helped make the annual canned food campaign a success.

Reserved for those boys who have lettered in one or more sports, the Lettermen's Club functioned well this year in its tradition of service to South Side.

The annual canned goods drive, in conjunction with the Christmas Bureau, collected food for the needy; the special chemistry class again contributed nearly three thousand points. Mr. Kelly's sophomore homeroom won the competition between homerooms for the greatest total points with 2,800 points.

Guided by Mr. George Davis and President Chuck Nelson, the boys had their annual potluck after the football season. Then they began planning for their annual dance, where Jim Wallis was crowned "King Kelly" by vote of the girls in attendance.

Tom Bolyard, former South Side and I.U. basketball star and now freshman coach at Indiana University, spoke to the boys and their faculty hosts at the traditional spring banquet. They completed a full year of service and fun at this banquet; the underclass lettermen saluted the graduating lettermen as well as all athletic teams.

Cheerleaders Support Fine Teams, Plan 'Op Hop'

Stirring up school spirit and team support, both the varsity and reserve cheerleading squads led the student body at pep sessions and games throughout the year. The two groups, under the sponsorship of Miss Jeanne Smith, were expanded from ten to twelve members this year. All of the twelve attended the first city-wide cheer conference at North Side, and the varsity attended another conference at Oakhill High School in Converse, Indiana.

Another first in this year's program was the addition of several boys from the advanced tumbling class. The boys, coached by Mr. Walter Bartkiewicz, helped further spirit by performing gymnastics while the yell leaders cheered with the students.

Following a tradition, the cheerleaders undertook their annual dance; this year's version was "Op Hop." Wild colors and strange drawings decorated the cafeteria for the dance after the South Side-Mishawaka basketball game.

On Recognition Day the eleven girls and one boy on the squad were honored with charms or pins.

The first boy to make the cheerleading squad at South for three years, Mike Hatcher pleased the crowd with this jump.

Varsity cheerleaders for the 1966-1967 school year are, in order clockwise from the lower right: Sally Reitdorf, senior captain; Mike Hatcher, junior; Janeen Badgley, senior; Linda Young, senior; Tricia Hunt, junior; and, Bev Gouloff, junior.

These girls added continuity to the enthusiastic yelling of the rest of the students by belonging to Cheerblock and attending home games as a prerequisite for cheerleading.

Athletic Interests Of Kelly Students Reflected As

A green banner, a white blouse, and a dark skirt — Cheerblock. On the list of extra-curricular activities for the second year, South Side's cheerblock increased to one hundred girls this year and did its best to out-yell any other cheering section it encountered at games.

During the football season the girls sold a package of five ribbons which students could wear to support the athletes. With the basketball season came the organized block which attended every city series and home game.

The co-sponsors of the club, Mrs. Phyllis Bear and Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, decided that regular practices were not necessary, but they did initiate one new rule. It was decided, in agreement with the cheerleading sponsor, that any girl wishing to try out for cheerleading must have served in the Cheerblock for at least one year.

The members of each class nominated a representative of the class, and from these girls Junior Julie Inskeep was elected captain for the second year.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Drummond, the Flagbearers added a bit of pageantry to South Side's home athletic events. These girls worked with the band and Mr. Drummond on the technique of presenting the flags for the pre-game singing of the National Anthem.

Ralph Tourkow and Jon Byer, members of the Boys' Rifle Club, both claim to have shot the holes in the target between them. Actually the bulls' eyes were fired by club sponsor Mr. Arthur Peffley, an ex-Army officer and an expert marksman.

Meeting to discuss an upcoming shoot between Boys' and Girls' Rifle Clubs are several representatives of both clubs.

Archers Join Cheerblock, Color Guard, Rifle Club

Firearms in South Side? Only under the expert guidance of Mr. Arthur Peffley in the Rifle Clubs.

South Side's rifle range was a busy place this year. Archers became riflemen and joined the Boys' Rifle Club. The boys learned all about guns and their handling before starting the weekly drills. They had a chance to try extramural competition during the year and learned much from meeting other students who shared their interests.

Promoting sportsmanship was the prime concern of the club. The members also strove to better their marksmanship and discipline by staying within the range distance that was suggested for them; discipline is the most important aspect of learning to shoot, they learned.

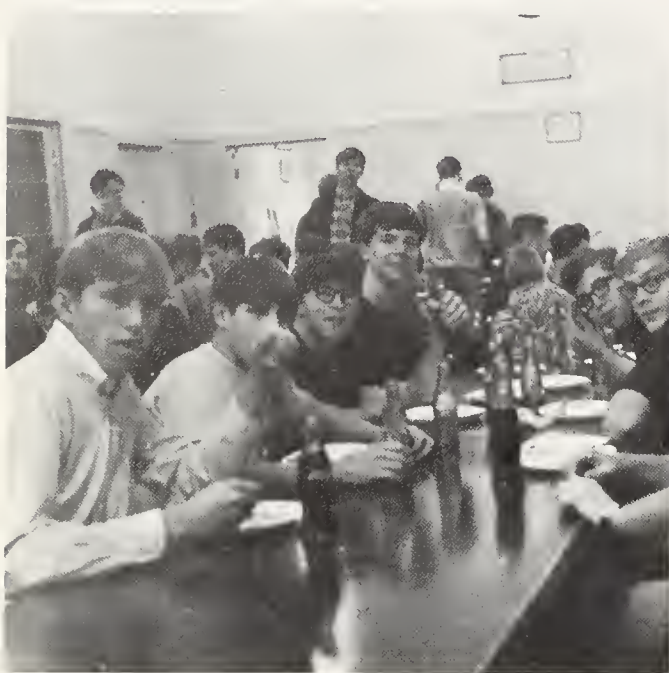

The National Rifle Association is on the lookout for outstanding young marksmen, and every member of the club was aware that he had to use all that Mr. Peffley had taught if he wished to be one of the few to receive recognition.

Archer girls also had a chance at the rifle range and the National Recognition. The Girls' Rifle Club, also sponsored by Mr. Peffley, had much the same curriculum as its male counterpart. The girls learned about the care and cleaning of guns and then engaged in weekly drills to perfect their aim and accuracy.

Members Derive Relaxation, Knowledge, Enrichment

One of several events during the year at which the Hi-Y boys get a chance to really let loose and have a good time is the annual Hi-Y picnic in the fall. This year was no different from past years, and the club picnic was an outstanding success.

Beginning activities in the fall, the Hi-Y Club, sponsored by Mr. Robert Weber, boosted school spirit by decorating the goalposts with green and white streamers. For the final football game of the season, the club organized a bonfire and a dance, "The Bonfire Blowout," to honor the team. Hi-Y sponsored bus trips enabling fans to see the Archers play football and basketball out of town.

Members performed a service for the school by compiling and establishing a sophomore addition to the Hi-Y Directory. They also maintained the Hi-Y Top Scholars Board.

In February the club had its annual "Queen of Hearts" dance. Another social event was the traditional Best Girl Banquet which the Hi-Y members attended with their dates.

At their weekly meetings, the boys heard several guest speakers. Recruiters from the Army and Air Force; former Hi-Y President Darryl Jones; a representative of the Better Business Bureau; Mr. Don Reichert, basketball coach; and Mr. Robert Gernand, football coach, provided most interesting programs.

The junior and senior boys of the Hi-Y Club organized a team which competed with other Hi-Y boys in the Allen County Hi-Y Basketball Conference.

From Hi-Y, Bridge Club, Cinema Guild Activities

Responsible, along with sponsor Mrs. Mildred Luse, far left, for the organizing of Cinema Guild this year were David Langdon, Jon Zorn, Phil Ruhl, and Neal Heiser. They chose and ordered the films shown during the year to the members.

Mrs. Hilmert helps a beginner with the fundamentals.

Spirited competition, intense through, and much enjoyment typified the weekly meetings of the Bridge Club. After school on Thursdays interested students had an opportunity to learn bridge or to improve their techniques in this game while relaxing from a hard day.

Under the direction of Miss Lutie Young and Mrs. Margaret Hilmert, the inexperienced students learned the fundamentals while other students applied themselves to mastering the more complex moves. Highest individual point total determined the winner of the bridge tournament planned for the spring semester.

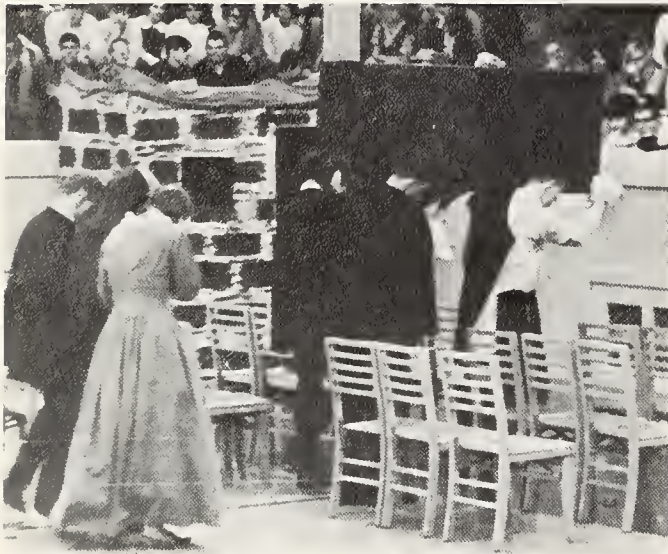

Cinema Guild, with the assistance of Mrs. Mildred Luse, brought six famous films to South Side this year. The three color and three black-and-white films were: "Nothing Sacred," "Camille," "Kiss Me Kate," "The Mouse That Roared," "High Noon," and "Gaslight."

An intensive membership drive resulted in an increase to ninety-six members. Apart from its regular activities, the Guild sold tickets for the epic film "The Agony and the Ecstasy" during its run at the Holiday Theater, from which the club earned a percentage of the profit. Now in its third year, the Guild has proven one of the most popular clubs.

Efforts Of Assemblies Workshop Produce Comedy;

The pathos of death as depicted in the Thanksgiving Assembly adds a somber note to the accustomed tone of happiness.

Under the leadership of Mr. Don Locke and Mr. David Cowdrey, Assemblies Workshop provided entertainment and inspiration on three occasions during the year.

Members began the year with the traditional cleaning and sorting of equipment used in past assemblies. With a clear path through the storeroom, stagecraft workers started a search for properties and construction materials for the first assembly.

The Thanksgiving Assembly allowed a very large number of students to participate. Shelley Long, the turkey-narrator, led the entire assembly.

In honor of the one-hundred fiftieth anniversary of Indiana's statehood, members prepared a special production. Students portrayed Little Turtle, Anthony Wayne, Johnny Appleseed, Thomas Marshall, Lew Wallace, William Henry Harrison, Booth Tarkington, Red Skelton, Cole Porter and other Hoosier celebrities in the Sesquicentennial Assembly.

The presentation of the Easter Assembly concluded the work for this school year.

Employs Drama Theme, Sponsors Literary Contests

Nancy Howard, Mary Ann Gerhold, Ann Turnley, and Diane Farhi served as Meterite officers for the second semester.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Margaret Hilmert and Miss Lois Holtmeyer, Meterite maintained many traditional activities this year, beginning with a skit by the officers at the first meeting. The annual poetry contest, short story competition, and spelling bee provide a varied program throughout the year.

The club chose a program theme of the theater and its various aspects. At the meetings were Professor Robert Tolan, drama instructor at the Indiana-Purdue Regional Campus; and Mr. James Morey, South Side English teacher and award-winning actor in the Civic Theater. The girls had a chance to demonstrate what they had learned by performing a play at their Christmas party. Also in December, Meterite sponsored "Jingle Bell Journey," an after-game dance.

The yearly recognition tea, to which the girls invited their mothers, featured the juniors' graduation from the club; an election of officers; and the awarding of ribbons, certificates, and charms to members with the most points.

Wearing formals, the girls participated in the Quarter-Century Club Banquet providing entertainment and presenting roses to teachers. The girls completed the year with a picnic.

Philos Serve As Big Sisters To Sophomore Girls,

Carolyn Russ performs as mistress of ceremonies at the Philo Orientation Program for sophomore girls in September.

The Philalethian Literary Society, under the sponsorship of Miss Mary Graham, began this season as the oldest club of South Side with the annual orientation party for sophomore girls, "Hello Sophomore."

The girls enjoyed a Thanksgiving celebration which included the performance of a holiday play. In the winter the senior members sponsored an after-game dance, "Holiday Happiness."

In the spirit of the season, the club also had a Christmas party. Before the refreshments were served, the members listened to a seasonal poem, song, personal essay on the meaning of Christmas, and a short story.

Judges proclaimed Laura Azar the winner of the annual short story contest. Later in the year members participated in poetry competition and a talent show.

At the talent show, several of the members joined together to lead a hootenanny; others presented skits and declamations.

In mid-January the club's membership increased greatly when juniors, former Meterite girls, joined the Seniors.

Study Theater, Plan Parties, Recognition Banquet

Highlights of other Philo meetings included the appearance of several guests who spoke of the many facets of drama. Mrs. Paul Deal told anecdotes and presented information about backstage work and her experiences in costuming for the theater. Faculty member Mr. James Morey talked to the organization about the job of the actor in portraying characters. Two Kelly senior girls shared their theatrical experience with the club members. Shelley Long spoke about the summer drama institute she attended and Julie Buchheit addressed the club as a performer in several Civic Theater plays. Local television personality and summer theater actress Ann Colone graciously accepted an invitation to speak.

Wranglers Conduct Speech Contest, Attend Meetings,

The school's forensic club, Wranglers, aimed to better the spoken word through competition. Under the guidance of Mr. Robert Storey, the club conducted contests at meetings throughout both semesters as its program stimulus.

Members who attended summer drama institutes on college campuses presented reports of their experiences. At the annual Christmas party each member received a gift of a mounted excerpt from a famous literary work or speech.

A team of about twenty-five speakers with Mr. Storey as coach traveled to speech meets from New Haven to Lafayette. Speakers contended in the solo events of girls' and boys' extemporaneous, radio, poetry, oratorical interpretation, original oratory, and dramatic and humorous interpretation. Some students entered discussion where they disputed the foreign aid issue. Going to meets meant practicing after school and rising early on Saturday mornings to board the bus.

The debate team journeyed to debate meets and attained an impressive record, Tom Lampe and Warren Cole qualifying for the national meet this summer. They argued the topic of foreign aid.

Five of the seven speakers who attended the Debaters' Conference earned certificates. The Conference consisted of competition in extemporaneous and discussion divisions. Wranglers also participated in the National Forensic League Student Congress and Purdue Legislative Assembly.

Near the end of the year deserving members received pins earned by accumulating points at meets. At the annual banquet a high-point trophy was awarded. A fun-filled picnic rounded out a year of achievement for the Wranglers.

Chuck Fay, treasurer; Shelley Long, president; Warren Cole, vice-president; and Julie Levy, secretary, meet informally to discuss plans for an upcoming tournament. These contests give members of the speech club practice and self-confidence.

Seeking the knowledge of the sciences summarizes the main objective of members of the Junior Academy of Science. Mr. Richard Bussard, Mr. John Leffel, and Mr. Wendell Law sponsored the Physics, Chemistry, and Life Science sections respectively. The club's divisions are determined by the areas of the members' major interest. Officers Ken Burnett, president; Cathy Cozmas, vice-president; and Bernadette Dye, secretary assumed the responsibility for coordinating all activities.

Because of the varied interests of the members of each section, each group conducted separate meetings. These individual meetings were highlighted by demonstrations, reports, experiments, and discussions prepared and presented either by the members themselves or by the sponsor. Once a month the entire Academy met to relate the various accomplishments of the sections. Programming for these 'meetings' included speakers, films, or field trips.

The agenda included picnics in the fall and spring. Members used their ingenuity when a fall rain made a picnic outdoors impossible. The physics lab became the adopted site for the get-together and huge beakers from the chemistry lab held the boiling water and hotdogs. Once again science overcame the forces of nature!

Mr. Leffel watches as Cindy Powers and John Rhoads perform an experiment at a meeting of the Chemistry Section.

Club Relate Activities, Projects To Curriculum

The Latin Club had as its goal gaining a better understanding of the life and customs of the Romans. Sponsored by Mrs. Anne Redmond, the club met once a month. Officers for the year were George Wilson, president; Fay Moilanen, vice-president; and Doris Boyd, secretary-treasurer.

Although a small club, it successfully sold book covers to students, in keeping with its tradition. The annual Roman Banquet in the spring, to which all Latin students received invitation, remained the main project of the club.

Sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Thexton, the Art Club of South Side offered to all students interested in art the opportunity to gain a greater appreciation for the aesthetic world. The club provided a studio for the student artists to create various types of art objects and to gain knowledge of its fascinating fields. Throughout the year the Art Club sponsored several interesting field trips. Mr. John Ross conducted one of these trips, a journey to the Art Library. The club heard lectures delivered by art authorities such as Mr. Harold Radatz.

An interesting project undertaken by the Art Club again this year was the Art Auction. This event occurred in May after many weeks of careful planning and preparing. Art Club members offered their original creations for sale at this time.

This club showed the greatest increase in members of all the clubs at South Side. Those in the club worked on such projects as the Art Auction.

Students Evince Interest In History, Political

The History Club, a fairly young organization, concerned itself with discussing both the oldest problems of man and recent events. Sponsored by Mr. Roland Smith, the members followed a democratic pattern including elections and formulation of a constitution. The club opened its meetings to all students of South Side interested in becoming more informed of the world about them and willing to contribute their knowledge to the group and express their views.

This year the group concentrated primarily on a program of informal discussion and debate. This type of program resulted in a better understanding of the world's problems and a contribution by all the members. The meetings consisted of discussion of issues such as the November election, civil rights, U.S. foreign policy, Vietnam, and the Red China-U.N. admittance problem. Current events assumed primary importance in this club.

The History Club sent members to Indianapolis for the annual spring convention of the Indiana Junior Society with which the club is associated.

The purpose of the Political Science Club is to enlighten the members and provide a forum for expression of diverse options and ideas. Mr. Ralph Bogardus and Mr. William Hedges guided and directed the members in the planning of their meetings. Students elected their fellow members to lead the club: Tom Fay, president; Ken Payne and John Rhoads, vice presidents; and Linda Young, secretary-treasurer. Ken Lytle and Sue Scott took charge of planning the program.

The schedule for the year included a speaker from the John Birch Society, a panel debate on civil rights, and a foreign student from Pakistan. Slides shown by Rabbi Frederick A. Doppelt and Mr. Robert Back proved to be extremely interesting. A speaker about Russia enlightened many members.

Introducing the beliefs of many organizations in an organized manner has been a great accomplishment of the Political Science Club. Contribution by the majority of the members created a stimulating and informative situation throughout the year.

Members of the Political Science Club listen attentively to one of their many guest speakers, Mr. Robert Back.

Mr. Hosteler, "Uncle Hos," leads a choir rehearsal.

Choir members spend many hours in practice before performing at a school assembly or several community functions.

Songs; Performs For School, Numerous Functions

Under the direction of Mr. Lester Hostetler, the concert choir has completed another successful year. The group, which is composed of junior and senior students, participated in many engagements.

Highlighting its activities at school, the choir performed at music assemblies, a spring concert, and holiday assemblies. Keeping the choir busy in other areas were requests from churches and business organizations. Several organizations whose requests the choir granted included the Mutual Security Life Insurance Company, the Quota Club, the Lincoln National Bank, Lutheran Hospital, the P.T.A., and the faculty Christmas party.

In order to create an interest in future South Siders, the choir visited four junior highs this year. These trips proved to be thoroughly enjoyable to the members of the choir, as many returned to their alma mater.

Selections sung by the choir varied from deeply moving spirituals and seasonal songs to classical arrangements and popular songs of the day.

The schedule of the popular South Side choir seemed to become more crowded as the school year progressed. The final days of school included performances for the National Honor Society Banquet, Ivy Day, Baccalaureate, and Commencement.

Vocalists Ken Geesaman, Steve Todd, Dave Eggiman, and Bob Buckley comprise the folk group known as the Jericho Singers.

Mr. Lester Hostetler, director of vocal music, speaks to the parents of choir members on Back-to-School Night in the fall.

Senior Sue Laymon has filled the job of accompanist for the choir this year. She is assisted by Junior Carol Young, left.

Assemblies; Orchestra Stresses Classical Works

Trumpeters Merrill Phillips, Denny Teague, Richard Leath, Paul Dekker, Richard Hess, and Keith Ponader harmonize while playing a number which they presented in the Easter Assembly. All of the boys are members of the Brass Choir.

Mr. Robert Drummond, head of instrumental music at South, led the band and orchestra through another outstanding year. The band played for school activities and several outside functions. The Miniature Set for Band, Air de Sarabande, and "Grand March" from Aida were selections included in the performances of the band at assemblies and concerts throughout the year. Everyone enjoyed the music presented at the traditional Christmas assembly, spring concert and other music assemblies.

The efforts of the band entertained spectators in pre-game and half-time ceremonies at basketball and football games. The Majorettes aided by presenting the colors and half-time shows.

All-City Band provided recognition to many band members. Sixteen members participated state and local contests. Many successful performances, including assemblies at several junior high schools, Ivy Day, and Commencement exercises completed the year's activities for the band.

The orchestra participated in music assemblies throughout the year. It also played at several junior high schools. This instrumental group included Piano Concerto No. 2, "Minuet" from Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Dance of Tumblers, Marche Hongroise, and Prelude in E Minor among the group of selections it performed.

Recognition of seniors consisted of a pin for participating in the orchestra for three years. The outstanding member of the instrumental music section received an award on Recognition Day. Several members of the orchestra qualified for the All-City Orchestra and played with the group through the year.

Seniors

The 1966-67 school year will be considered one of the best in the history of the school largely because of the contributions made to it by the Class of 1967. Besides providing successes in athletics, especially football and basketball, the seniors carried on the traditions of the school in a manner befitting the Archers' high standards.

At the beginning of the year, parents, teachers, and senior students became reacquainted at the Senior Reception. As the Christmas season approached, the Archers began to collect cans for the Christmas Bureau. This year, the Senior Class, led by the special chemistry class, triumphed in the drive. As the new year and semester commenced, hints of college acceptances and secured jobs began to float through the halls. At this time, the Senior Banquet provided the upper class with a look into the past to predict the future.

Suddenly, the seniors realized the closeness of the end of their high school career, for in March and April they ordered graduation invitations and name cards and were measured for caps and gowns. National Honor Society Tag Day highlighted the next few weeks of school.

The senior play, "I Remember Mana," was the last event before the long-anticipated prom. In June, the final activities of the year, Recognition Day, Baccalaureate, and Commencement, honored one of the proudest and most talented groups of students to graduate from the Halls of Ivy.

Class Officers, Sponsors Lead Senior Kellys To

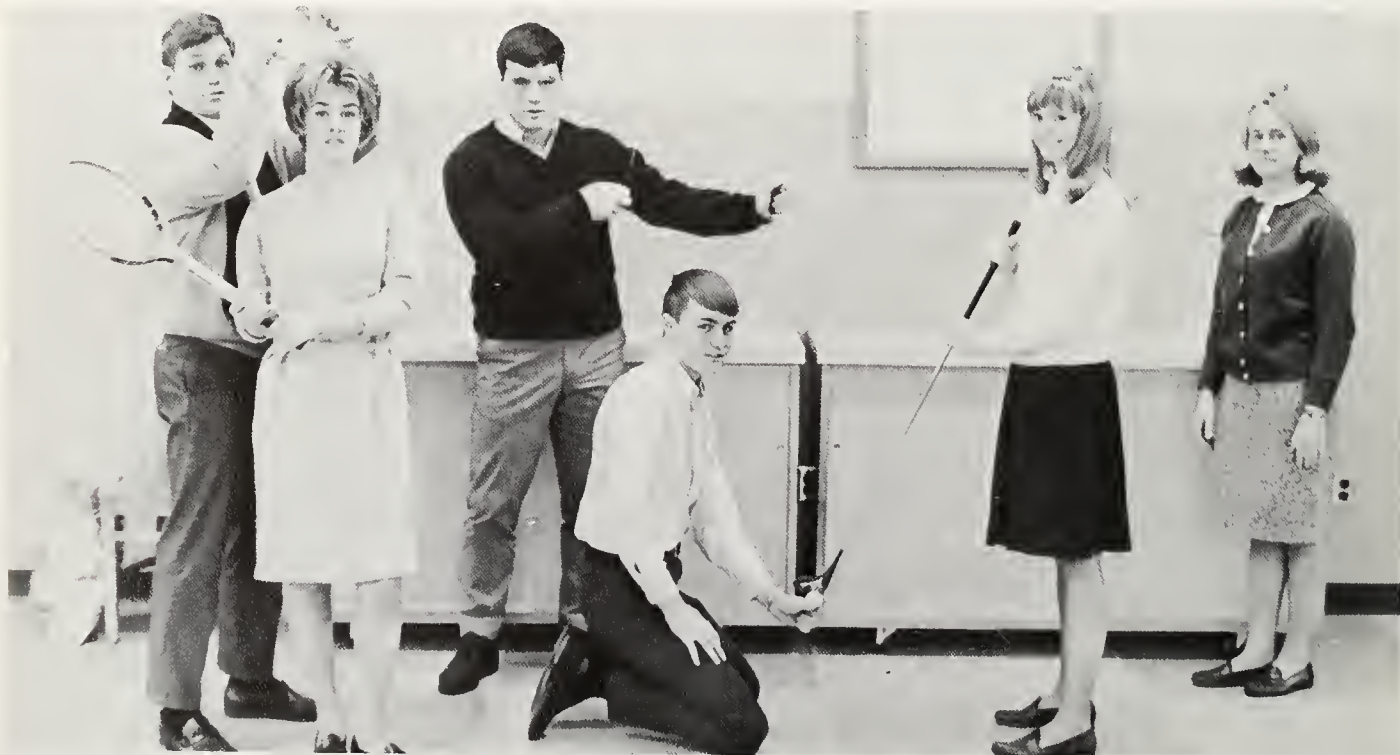

Mrs. Mary Smith, Miss Lois Holtmeyer, Mr. Richard Sage, and Mr. George Robert Davis prepare for an officers' meeting.

The school year 1966-1967 was a "green" year in more ways than one for the senior class. The outstanding "green" factor was the tremendous seasons, both in football and basketball, led by the senior Green. The varsity football team, led by remarkable seniors, was undefeated until its last game. The basketball team likewise entered its final game with a record of 22 wins and 3 losses.

"Green" represented growth for the Class of 1967 too. Each member of the Senior Class grew in academic achievement, in mental ability, in individual maturity, and in attainment of personal goals. Yet green still represents youth in the case of the Senior Class.

As each senior looks back upon his life at South Side, he will first recall the highlights of his first year, the sophomore party, "Soph Seas." He will then recall the prom, "A Knight's Reign," but he will not forget the Banquet, "Junior Junction." His senior year will bring to mind the excitement of the senior football game and the Senior Reception. One of the funniest and most thought-provoking senior banquets ever, "The Past Is The Future," will next enter his mind. His vision will end with the Prom, Baccalaureate, and Commencement. Yes, for the Class of 1967, "green" stands for outstanding athletic teams, growth, and youth.

Senior class vice-president Jim Lohman, social council chairman Jan Jones, social council member Tom Fleming, class president Sally Rietdorf, social council member Shelley Long, and secretary-treasurer Mike Phelps show somewhat humorously that, besides being class officers, they are also tennis stars, archery champions and professional golfers.

Underclass

Spurred on by their desire to succeed and by visions of their own senior years, South Side's underclassmen were outstanding in making 1967 "a year for the Kellys' Green." Their efforts were instrumental in setting the demanding standards of academic and athletic excellence and the uncontrollable spirit and enthusiasm prevalent throughout the entire school year.

The combined junior and sophomore classes, the largest of such combinations in the history of the school, made good use of their sheer strength in numbers. Each class made a most commendable contribution to the Lettermen's Canned Food Drive; and the Junior Class went on to win the Philo book drive. This same class spirit carried over into all the pep sessions throughout the year. Not only did each class win several yell contests; but also they never hesitated in their efforts to keep spirit high, making banners, posters, and class gifts for the teams.

The underclassmen consistently maintained high scholastic averages. The number of students on the underclass Honor Roll was outstanding, as was the percentage of students on the Top Scholars' Board.

All of South Side's athletic teams gained immeasurable strength from the underclass boys playing on them. Thus, they were able to set a truly remarkable composite standard for athletics.

Only with this strong base of devoted students was South able to build its victorious Green year.

The 1967 Junior Class officers, relaxing outside the school are, front row (left to right), Kathy Frederick, social council member; Sheryl Nelson, social council chairman; and Lydia Hallay, social council member. Mike Hatcher, vice-president; Warren Cole, president, and Mark P. Smith, secretary-treasurer, lean on the Theodore Roosevelt commemorative plaque.

Junior Advisers, Officers Guide 'Middle Class'

Junior sponsors, Miss Carol Edgar, Mr. Don Locke, and Mr. Robert Petty work together on plans for the Junior Prom.

Throughout the year, the members of the 1967 Junior Class found themselves "in the middle of everything." In classrooms, school clubs, athletics, skits, and even dances, they never failed to display their outstanding talents and love for excitement.

The class met the challenge for new, more demanding courses. Now, botany, physics, irregular verbs, Macbeth, and themes are only fond memories. In addition to these new courses and the PSAT and NMSQT tests, the 1967 Juniors will always remember the endless hours they spent in public libraries and at home, organizing their English research papers.

The students spent much of their time in extra-curricular activities, where they were able to build their own leadership and characters while helping to strengthen the school. Although very busy with homework and club activities, Juniors were never too busy to attend school dances, cheer their teams to victory, or collect for the annual canned food drive.

They elected six officers — Warren Cole, president; Mike Hatcher, vice-president; Mark Smith, secretary-treasurer; Sheryl Nelson, social council chairman; and Cathy Fredrick and Lydia Hallay, social council members — to help organize their special class functions. With advisors Miss Carol Edgar, Mr. Don Locke, and Mr. Robert Petty, the officers helped plan the class banquet, "Mind Excursion," and the Junior Prom, "Try to Remember."

After a truly rewarding year, the "middle class" looks forward to a successful "top" senior year.

Recalls Festive Junior Banquet, 'Mind Excursion'

Junior Class President Warren Cole listens attentively to the Reverend Phillip Philbrook at the "Mind Excursion" banquet.

Kerry Kaplan and Lynn Ress, backed by their class sign, spend their study hall in the library finishing homework.

Karen Kessler, president; Rex Melchi, social council chairman; and Scott Shoaff, social council member.

Outstanding Sophs Are Elected To Lead Their Class;

Miss Lutie Young, Mr. James Chandler, and Mrs. Dorothy Brutton discuss plans for the Sophomore Party.

The first day of school, they entered, bewildered, anxious, and hopeful. The 1967 Sophomore Class was confused by the maze of halls, the classes, the traditions, and the rules. However, having been introduced to the school building early last summer, and introduced to many of the upperclassmen at the Philo and Hi-Y Big Sister and Big Brother meetings in September, the sophomores were able to quickly assume their new roles.

The class, the largest in the history of the school, diligently strove to gain true understanding and knowledge as it studied Silas Marner, Julius Caesar, new math, and world history. Girls were able to participate in the annual Spring Show through their dance and gym classes, while many of the boys entered both inter- and intramural teams.

The class of 1969 was led by Karen Kessler, president; Randy Wamsley, vice-president; Steve Brookhart, secretary; Rex Melchi, social council chairman; and Scott Shoaff and Don Wood, social council members. They were advised by Mrs. Dorothy Brutton, Miss Lutie Young, and Mr. James Chandler.

The Sophomore Party, in the spring, brought together a most outstanding class, one which had produced its share of school leaders, taken valuable spots on the Top Scholars Board, and done commendably in the food and book drives. This was truly a green and growing year for the Class of 1969.

Totem Staff Toils Frantically To Capture Green Year

The picture on this page is representative of the activities in the Totem office during the time span from February 15 to March 28. Busy? No, just the most frantic, hectic period ever in the lives of the staff members.

Probably there will never again be such picture taking, copy writing, headline writing, and more. It is said that the staff set a record for doing more work in a shorter length of time than has ever before been accomplished. And how? As homework suffered, the staff lived and breathed "yearbook." The head photographer slept 17½ hours in the famous "Last Week," while the Editor-in-Chief and Associate Editor contended for the record number of consecutive sleepless nights.

Now, the Green Year has drawn to a close. The events are but things of the past. There remain memories of these events, memories which in several years would typically be mere shadows. We of the Totem staff, however, have tried to set down these highlights of the year which we think will be most meaningful in the years to come. We hope to have made the Green Year a permanent memory.

This book would not have been possible without the special efforts of many special people. Many thanks and deep appreciation go to Watters Studio, Fort Wayne Engraving Company, Fort Wayne Typesetting Company, Keefer Printing Company, the S. K. Smith Cover Company, Mrs. Barbara Thexton, Cindy Powers, and our supremely patient adviser, Miss Anne White.
